BURKE TO REMAIN, CHARGES DROPPED IN SECRET PARLEY

Kelly Gets New Post and Keeps Captaincy.

Number of Divisions Will Be Added to Department.

FRANK S. W. BURKE.

The long-fought controversy between Superintendent of Police Pelham D. Glassford and Inspector Frank S. W. Burke, head of the Detective Bureau, was settled last night following a closed conference at the home of Corporatoion Counsel W. W. Bride, with Inspector Burke remaining as chief of detectives.

As a result of the session, attended by Gen. Glassford, Burke and Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby, Mr. Bride, in a statement to the press, declared the allegations made by Gen. Glassford were discussed and it was agreed that there was "not sufficient basis for them either to merit a demotion or even a trial upon them."

Divisions to Be Added.

The meeting brought out that a number of new divisions will be added to the Metropolitan Police Department. Capt. Edward J. Kelly, who had been slated to take Inspector Burke's place, will be placed in charge of the "Division of Criminal Investigation." He will remain in the rank of captain.

The other proposed bureaus include a division of criminal identification and records, the present Crime Prevention Bureau and a probable administrative division.

Mr. Bride, in reviewing the case and findings of the secret conference, declared that such differences as existed between the two police officials were discussed and completely adjusted.

Consents to Withdrawal.

"Upon request of Gen. Glassford," Mr. Bride said, "Commissioner Crosby consented to their withdrawal. Gen. Glassford testified heartily to his complete confidence in the character, ability, integrity and loyalty of Inspector Burke."

Inspector Burke will continue to have complete charge of the Detective Bureau. Capt. Kelly, as head of the new division, will report directly to the detective chief, and in Inspector Burke's absence, will assume temporary command of the bureau.

Capt. Bernard W. Thompson will retain his present rank and position as assistant to Inspector Burke.

Was Notified on Sept. 30.

On September 30 Inspector Burke was notified that plans were being developed to relieve him from command of the Detective Bureau, with a choice of retiring under his present rank.

A retirement board found the inspector physically fit to continue duties and refused to sanction the retirement.

"A temperamental inability" to cooperate with Gen. Glassford was cited as among other reasons for Inspector Burke's removal. In the charges it was declared he had "outlived his usefulness as chief of detectives."

Asked what chance Capt. Kelly might have to become an inspector as head of the new division, Gen. Glassford declared that there were "many things yet to be taken care of."

HERRIOT SAYS DEBTS ARE OPEN TO PARLEY

New French Premier Backs Hoover Disarming Plan; Favors Berlin Pact.

Paris, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Asked before a Chamber of Deputies' committee today whether France expected to pay her war debt to the United States, Premier Edouard Herriot was reported to have replied that the debt was a matter for negotiation.

The question was raised, it was said, by Deputy Henry Haye at a session of the Chamber's committee on foreign affairs.

At the same meeting M. Herriot announced he would prepare disarmament proposals under which France would indicate her willingness "to go as far along the road" to disarmament as was permitted by the necessities of national security.

It was reported in Chamber lobbies that the premier was asked at the committee meeting why he had not accepted President Hoover's plan for a general one-third reduction in all arms when that plan was first proposed.

M. Herriot is understood to have replied that he always had followed the disarmament policy laid down in the Hoover program.

His discussion of the arms question was in connection with the disarmament plan France expects to file at Geneva. The superior council of war and the premier now are working on this plan.

Deputies quoted the premier as saying he favored revision of the German trade treaty, rather than abrogation of it, as advocated by some French interests.

German representatives already have started negotiations at the French ministry of commerce relative to fitting new German trade quotas into the existing Franco-German commercial agreements.

One of the deputies at today's committee meeting asked about diplomatic relations with America, and the premier reported them to be excellent.

U.S. EMPLOYES' SESSION URGES FIVE-DAY WEEK

Classification of Field Service Included in Legislative Plan.

FIGHT ON ECONOMY PROVISIONS IS SET

A five-point legislative program, emphasizing the need for field service classification and a shortened work week, was drawn up yesterday by the newly organized American Federation of Government Employes, meeting in national convention at the Hamilton Hotel.

It was the classification question which caused the National Federation of Federal Empoyes to withdraw from American Federation of Labor affiliation, and gave birth to the new organization. The seceding group wanted classification to be general; the Labor group wanted certain trades exempted.

The program adopted modifies the former labor stand. It seeks "definite legislative extension of a proper job classification to field services, in harmony with our affiliates, insofar as the alternative of wage board action for certain workers may be deemed more desirable."

Other Points in Program.

Other points in the legislative program include:

1. Restoration of pay and privileges lost or reduced by operation of the economy act.

2. Strengthening of retirement act provisions, with emphasis on additional optional features and improved retirement annuities.

3. Application wherever possible of the five-day week "without loss of pay or equivalent privilege" to the Federal service.

4. Legislation providing employe representation on executive bodies dealing with employment policy and working conditions, with employe representation on the Civil Service Commission.

The convention voted to give its executive council authority to carry the program into execution, "opposing or defending" proposals that come up in Congress.

Shaw Named President.

Hungarian's Plot On Bethlen Futile

Former Premier Was Approached by Man With Dagger, Police Say.

Budapest, Hungary, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Former Premier Count Stephen Bethlen escaped today from what the police declared was an attempt to assassinate him.

The incident took place in a crowded courtroom. A policeman said he saw Louis Eskudt, private secretary to the former minister of agriculture, approach the count with a dagger in his hand. The policeman seized Eskudt, who denied drawing the knife and said he always carried it for his own protection.

Count Bethlen resigned as head of the government last August after ten years' service, and was succeeded by Count Julius Karolyi.

St. Marys Citizens May Ask Troops to Subdue Bandits

Sheriff's Refusal to Resign Prompts Mass Meeting to Form Committee to Lay "Black Shirt" Outrages Before Gov. Ritchie.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Leonardtown, Md., Oct. 19.—A possibility that State troops will be called to track down members of the Southern Maryland "Black Shirt" gang loomed in St. Marys County tonight, after citizens from surrounding sections, at a mass meeting held here today, bitterly scored Sheriff Richard T. Hammett for his lack of activity in attempting to solve the long string of depredations.

The meeting resulted from Sheriff Hammett's stand-pat refusal to deputize members of the Maryland State Police, on the grounds that he desired no "outside interference" in the case. Although the sheriff would not reveal his reasons for refusing to deputize the State policemen as peace officers, he told his correspondent some time ago that once given the authority, the State patrolmen would "interfere in everything."

"I alone have the power to deputize these men," Sheriff Hammett said, "and as long as I am in office it will never be done."

At the height of a heated discussion, with almost 100 irate citizens voicing their sentiments, the Rev. J. M. Woodrow, pastor of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, rose and demanded the resignation of Sheriff Hammett.

The sheriff, who sat throughout the meeting, refused to comply. It was then decided to appoint a committee, with instructions to lay the matter before Gov. Albert C. Ritchie. In the event county authorities continue to lag in their investigation of the gang, the citizens said they would request the governor to call out State troops.

As the citizens' attack on the sheriff's office progressed in an upper room of the old courthouse, members of the Board of County Commission-

DR. HAYDEN JOHNSON.

DR. JOHNSON CHOSEN SCHOOL BOARD HEAD

Chancellor to Be Successor to Dr. Simon; Mrs. Doyle Vice President.

Chancellor Hayden Johnson, of National University Law School, yesterday was elected president of the Board of Education, and Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle was renamed vice president.

The new president is the newest member of the board, having been appointed to the body last July 1, succeeding Daniel C. Roper, resigned. Dr. Abram Simon is retiring president of the board, and has headed it since the death of Charles F. Carusi in February, 1931.

Continuance of the policies of his predecessor was voiced last night by Chancellor Johnson when approached as to any possible reforms he might have in mind.

Chancellor Johnson was nominated by George M. Whitmell and this nomination was seconded by Henry Gilligan. Mrs. Doyle was also put forward by Mrs. William C. McNeill as a candidate for presidency of the board, but inasmuch as there was no second, the nomination was not complete.

Dr. Simon put the question to the board and Chancellor Johnson was elected unanimously by acclamation.

Mr. Gilligan smilingly remarked he had no objection to Mrs. Doyle as president but that he considered a board comprising six men and three women should be headed by a man. He then nominated Mrs. Doyle for the vice presidency and this was seconded by Mrs. McNeill.

Advance notice in the press of the intention of the board to consider important school matters was favorably voted upon. The Federation of Citizens Associations has contended that the opinions of all sides to a school question have not been adequately heard because of lack of prior knowledge regarding the board's consideration of such matters.

The request of the Burroughs Citizens Association for restoration of the cupola to plans for the Taft Junior High School was approved by the board and such attitude was for-

NORRIS' CHARGE ON JUDGESHIP IS DENIED BY DOAK

Secretary Calls Senator Professional Character Assassin.

RICHBERG AFFIRMS NEBRASKAN'S CLAIM

President Had Nothing to Do With Parley, Says Cabinet Member.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Norris' assertion that Secretary Doak suggested a Federal judgeship for Donald R. Richberg, railroad labor attorney, during discussion of a compromise on the anti-injunction bill was denied yesterday by the Cabinet member, reiterated by Norris and affirmed by Richberg.

Doak called the Nebraska senator "a professional character assassin." He termed the allegation "utterly false" and said: "There was even no circumstance in connection with any of our conferences upon which any such statement could have been based."

Richberg, in Topeka, Kans., said Norris' assertions were "absolutely accurate." He added:

"As a matter of fact, I told Senator Norris the facts at the time they occurred and since then have confirmed them in a memorandum to him. I felt at the time I might be placed in a false position."

Norris Makes Reply.

Advised of the Secretary's denial, Norris said in Saginaw, Mich.:

"Certainly, he would deny it. What else could he do in the face of such an accusation?"

Norris, who is campaigning as an independent Republican for Gov Roosevelt, said in his speech Tuesday night at Cleveland that the administration had shown "unrelenting opposition" to the bill to prevent use of injunctions against strikers and accused the Republican of falsely claiming for the Chief Executive credit for its enactment.

He said Doak had called Richberg, who is attorney for the 21 railway unions and brotherhoods, to Washington and while discussing the legislation "suggested he might be able to exert a great deal of influence" to obtain a judgeship for the attorney.

Richberg Is Quoted.

Norris said Richberg quoted Doak as saying he was acting "on behalf and at the suggestion" of President Hoover.

"Being without the immunity which attaches to his libels when he speaks in the United States Senate," Doak said in a formal statement, "Senator Norris in this instance hid behind what he claimed was a quotation from another individual, namely Mr. Richberg.

"He was careful to state that 'no pledge was made,' 'no direct promise

Hearing on Capone Writ Is Postponed

Delayed Until Week of Nov. 14 by Judge Because of Congested Docket.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Al Capone must wait another month to make his bid for freedom from the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary.

Feleral Judge Marvin Underwood, faced by a congested court docket, today postponed until the week of November 14 a hearing on the former Chicago beer baron's petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

Judge Underwood called a conference of attorneys representing Capone and the Government and told them there are witnesses here from all parts of the United States for trial of a narcotic case already under way, and, as a convenience to them, he had decided to postpone the Caphone hearing. Assistant Attorney General A. G. Youngquist, of Washington, and District Attorney Dwight Greene, of Chicago, left for Washington soon after the postponement was announced.

Lucas Says Hoover Is "In"

Tells President 270 Electoral Votes Can Be Counted "Safe," and Predicts Total May Go to 340; Itinerary for Trip to Detroit Approved.

(Associated Press.)

A statement that 270 electoral votes—4 more than a majority—now could be counted "safe" for President Hoover was delivered at the White House yesterday by Robert Lucas, chairman of the executive committee of the Republican national committee.

In an interlude in the President's drive toward completion of his coming speech at Detroit, Lucas said he reported to him that the Republican campaign now was aimed at making the election "even safer."

He predicted the Hoover electoral total "may go to 340."

The Chief Executive himself, meanwhile, gave final approval to plans for his third successive political swing into the Midwest. Mr. Hoover is scheduled to appear next Saturday before at least thirteen different audiences in West Virginia and Ohio before reaching Detroit.

The Michigan address, Secretary Mills told newspapermen earlier, will be a "fighting, thumping speech," somewhat along the lines of those delivered by the President at Des Moines and Cleveland.

The finally approved itinerary for the Chief Executive's Detroit trip calls for him to leave the National Capital tomorrow night, in order that he may reach Charleston, W. Va., early Saturday. His schedule provides a half-hour stop at the West Virginia capital, where he may leave his special train to deliver a brief address.

Then, in rapid succession, rear platform appearances are scheduled at Huntington and Kenova, W. Va., and at Ironton, Portsmouth, Waverley, Chillicothe, Circleville, Columbus, Delaware, Marion, Fostoria and Toledo, all in Ohio.

Lucas, after his conference with the President, said he had reported that the political situation "is improving very, very rapidly."

"I told him," he said, "there was no doubt in the world but that he would carry California."

The executive committee chairman's resume of that part of the political field upon which he said he reported described Kansas and Iowa as "perfectly safe," Oregon and Colorado as "safe," Washington and South Dakota as "rapidly becoming safe," North Dakota as "in some doubt," Nebraska as "leaning strongly toward the President," Ohio and Illinois as "confused," and Indiana as "safe today."

FORD TERMS CRISIS GRAVER THAN 1861-65

Would Support Hoover Even if He Were Democrat, Is Campaign Plea.

Detroit, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Henry Ford said in a radio campaign address tonight that "if Herbert Hoover were a Democrat, with his record during the last four years, I should have to support him."

"Mr. Hoover," he said, "is carrying a greater burden than Abraham Lincoln carried—and he is carrying it in a way that places him beside Lincoln in sacrificial service."

Disavowing any intention of making a "party speech," Mr. Ford said, "I suppose I am like most Americans—we never bother about politics until it means something to us. Party politics have never meant anything to me, and they mean nothing to me tonight."

The automobile manufacturer spoke from the engineering laboratory building of the Ford Motor Co. in Dearborn. He was introduced by Gov. Wilber M. Brucker, Republican candidate for reelection, to whom he also gave his support.

He said that "every act of the President has been in the interest of employment;" that he "kept his head when others lost theirs," and that "no act of his has been dictated by panic or politics."

"And the result," he continued, "is that we are now beginning to feel the lifting power of his well-thought-out program."

Ford said "the next big job is to improve the money system. I would like to see it done by a man of practical experience like Mr. Hoover." He

SMITH SEES VICTORY; CROWDS CHEER TALK

Tells His Fellow Members Tammany Will Do Its Best to Elect Roosevelt.

Tammany Hall, New York, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Alfred E. Smith told his fellow members of Tammany Hall tonight that he knew the loyalty and devotion "of the great Democratic organization of this city will be exerted to the last degree in favor of the election of Roosevelt and Garner."

With the smile that won him the sobriquet of "the happy warrior," Mr. Smith said:

"The bright star guiding us into a harbor and haven of repose—complete and full Democratic victory in November."

He devoted most of his 45-minute address to a discussion of State and city issues, explaining he would talk of national issues in a speech in Newark, N. J., Monday night, and at the "wind-up of the campaign" in New York City just before election.

"Complete victory in the Nation," he said early in his address, "is necessary to the carrying out of the party declarations of principle. • • •

Power Commission Orders McCuen to End G. O. P. Work

Called Back to Post as Group's Secretary Following Criticism by Walsh; Had Been on Payless Furlough During Campaign Activities.

(Associated Press.)

The power commission yesterday advised Joseph R. McCuen, its secretary, to terminate his work with the Republican national committee in New York and return to his post here.

Chairman Smith wrote McCuen, who has been on a payless furlough, that the commission unanimously had adopted a resolution prohibiting certain political activities by employes and added:

"The others of the commission all feel that the spirit of this order would require you to discontinue at once your connection with the Republican national committee and resume your duties with the commission."

Under the resolution no presidential appointee or holder of a noncivil service post with the commission will be permitted:

"To hold a position as a member of any political committee that solicits funds;

"To display such obtrusive partisanship as to cause public scandal;

"To attempt to manipulate party primaries or conventions;

"To use his position to bring about his selection as delegate to conventions;

"To act as chairman of a political convention;

"To assume the active conduct of a political campaign;

"To use his position to interfere with an election or to affect the result thereof;

"To neglect his public duties."

The adoption of this resolution followed a recent statement by Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, pointing to McCuen's absence from Washington for what he described as political work. The senator suggested

Renews Stand He Expressed in April.

Hits G. O. P. Fiscal Policies and Calls for Beer Tax.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—In a speech assailing fiscal policies of the Republican administration and pledging himself to a program of governmental economy, Franklin D. Roosevelt told many thousands of persons in the high-tiered grand stands of a baseball park tonight that he did not see how a Government could consider anticipating bonus payments until it had a balanced budget with cash in the Treasury.

The Democratic presidential candidate made his bonus statement in the form of an assertion that he had given his views last April and that his mind on the subject had not been changed since.

While resounding cheers rolled across the field to his speaker's stand at second base, the Democratic presidential candidate pointed to a beer tax as one method of avoiding new tax increases, accused the Republican administration of "concealment and vacillation," which, he said, had prevented Congress from balancing the budget, and said he would exact from every member of his Cabinet a twofold economy pledge.

Says New Deficit Impends.

Mr. Roosevelt recited figures from the report of governmental finances for the first quarter of this fiscal year, said a new deficit was impending and that Congress would have its budget-balancing work to do over at the next session of Congress.

He said that "for my distinguished opponent" 1931 was the "year when all his distinctive economic heresies seemed to come home to roost together."

The governor said the unbalanced budget and the methods of financing chosen by the Republican administration had drained the banks of the credit reserves that otherwise might have helped lessen the credit drouth.

Mellon's Name Booed.

A reference to Andrew Mellon, former Secretary of the Treasury, brought a resounding "boo" from the crowd.

The speech, marking an invasion by the Democratic candidate into territory that has long recorded its votes in presidential elections for Republicans, came at the end of a day that took him on an automobile trip into West Virginia and Ohio.

He went directly from the field to his train to continue his campaign trip across southern Ohio to Indianapolis, where he will speak again tomorrow.

In his first statement on the bonus since he was nominated for the Presidency, Mr. Roosevelt said he did not see how a government $2,000,000,000 behind with its annual expenses could consider the anticipation of

Yost traced the depression back to the World War "when from 250 to 300 billion dollars were literally 'shot up' and the industrial and commercial activities of the world were wrecked."

TEXT OF ROOSEVELT'S SPEECH AT PITTSBURGH

REFORM IN FEDERAL FINANCING STRESSED

Says Nation Faces Another Staggering Deficit in Coming Year.

It is fitting that I should choose Pittsburgh to sound a solemn note of warning addressed not only to the Republican leaders, but also to the rank and file of American voters of all parties. There are some prices too high for the country to pay for the propaganda spread abroad in a presidential election.

That is true when as now the Republican campaign management is guilty of spreading the gospel of fear.

That is true when in a desperate, futile, last-minute effort to dam the tide of popular disapproval that is steadily growing against the administration, they become alarmists and panic breeders.

This policy of seeking to win by fear of ruin is selfish in its motive, brutal in its method and false in its premise. It is a policy that will be resented as such by men and women of all parties in every section of the land on November 8.

It is an insult to the intelligence of the voter to think that he or she can be fooled by shifting the boast of the full dinner pail made in 1928 to the threat of the continued empty dinner pail in 1932.

I assure the badly advised and fear-stricken leaders of the Republican party that Democrats and those of the rank and file of their own party who are properly dissatisfied with their leadership, are still American patriots and cherish in their hearts, as I do, the safety of the country, the welfare of its people and the continuance of our institutions.

So much for the note of warning.

What is the normal and sensible thing to do when your neighbor gets excited and starts calling you and your friends bad names over the back fence? Nothing is gained by calling him worse names or by losing one's temper. The peace of the community is best served by sitting down and quietly discussing the problems without raising one's voice. That is why I decline to answer vituperation by vituperation.

One of these problems—and a very vital one to my family and your family and the whole country—is the financial problem of making both ends meet.

Intricacies of Federal Financing Are Reviewed.

I want to discuss this problem with you tonight fully. To do so sincerely I must tell the facts as they are and conceal nothing from you. It is not a pretty picture, but if we know it and face it we have nothing to fear. This country is the richest and most resourceful nation in the world. It can and will meet successfully every problem which it faces, but it can do so only through intelligent leadership working unselfishly for the good of all people. That it has not had such leadership in its financial affairs will become obvious from the facts I shall relate to you tonight.

We all know that our own family credit depends in large part on the stability of the credit of the United States. And here at least is one field in which all business, big business and little business and family business and the individual's business, is at the mercy of our big Government down in Washington.

Now, it is undoubtedly true that the mind of the average individual, man and woman, has been unable to keep pace in the past ten or twelve years with the intricacies of Federal financing. In the first place, what used to be analogous to an old-fashioned account book that all the family could understand, has become in Washington a maze of intricate double-entry bookkeeping which only a few highly trained technical expert accountants could possibly understand.

What I should like to do is to reduce, in so far as possible, the problem of our national finances to the terms of a family budget.

Now the credit of the family depends chiefly on whether that family is living within its income. And this is so of the Nation. If the Nation is living within its income, its credit is good. If in some crisis it lives beyond its income for a year or two it can usually borrow temporarily on reasonable terms. But if, like a spendthrift, it throws discretion to the winds, is willing to make no sacrifice at all in spending, extends its taxing to the limit of the people's power to pay and continues to pile up deficits, it is on the road to bankruptcy.

For over two years our Federal Government has experienced unprecedented deficits, in spite of increased taxes. We must not forget that there are three separate governmental spending and taxing agencies in the United States — national, State and local. Because the apparent national income seemed to have spiraled upward from about 35 billions a year in 1913 to about 90 billions in 1928, all three of our governmental units became reckless and the total spending in all three classes rose in the same period from about three billions to nearly thirteen billions, or from 8½ per cent of income to 14½ per cent of income.

Tax Burdens Find Way to Shoulders of All.

But even we did not greatly worry. We thought we were getting rich.

"Come-easy-go-easy" was the rule. It was all very merry while it lasted, but when the crash came, we were shocked to find that while income dropped away like snow in the spring, governmental expense did not, with the result that it is estimated that in 1932 our national income will not much exceed 45 billions, while our total cost of government will likely be considerably in excess of 15 billions. This simply means that one-third—33 1-3 per cent—of the entire income of our people must go for the luxury of being governed.

That is an impossible economic condition. Quite apart from every man's own tax assessment, that burden is a brake on any return to normal business activity. Taxes are paid in the sweat of every man who labors because they are a burden on production, and can be paid only by production. If excessive, they are reflected in idle factories, tax-sold farms and, hence, in hordes of the hungry tramping the streets and seeking jobs in vain. Our workers may never see a tax bill, but they pay in reductions from wages, in increased cost of what they buy, or (as now) in broad cessation of employment. There is not an unemployed man, there is not a struggling farmer, whose interest in this subject is not direct and vital.

Let me make it perfectly clear, however, that if men or women or children are starving in the United States, I regard it as a positive duty of government to raise by taxes whatever sum may be necessary to keep them from starvation.

What I am talking about are the taxes which go to the ordinary costs of conducting government, and that is where the question of extravagances comes in. There can be no extravagance when starvation is in question, but extravagance does apply to the mounting budget of the Federal Government in Washington during these past four years.

The most obvious effect of extravagant Government spending is, then, its burden on farm and industrial activity, and, for that, nearly every Government unit in the United States is to blame. But when we come to consider prodigality and extravagance in the Federal Government—as distinguished from State or local government—we are talking about something even more dangerous. For upon the financial stability of the United States Government depends the stability of trade and employment and of the entire banking, saving and insurance system of the country.

Charges Extravagance In Federal Expenditures.

To make things clear—to explain the exact nature of the present condition of the Federal pocketbook—I must go back to 1929.

Many people have believed the story which has been painstakingly circulated by this administration that the routine spending of our Federal Government has been kept on a fairly even keel during these past five years. It was perhaps easy to give this impression because the total outlay each year up to the emergency appropriations of this year did not increase alarmingly. But the joker in this is that total outlay includes interest and sinking fund on the public debt—a fixed charge which was declining during the days of national debt reduction and lower interest rates thereon. On the plain question of frugality of management, if we want to compare routine Government outlay of 1927 with that for 1931, for example, we must subtract this so-called "debt service charge" from the total budget for both years. If we do this, we find that the expenditure for the business of Government in 1927 was $2,187,000,000 and in 1931 $3,168,000,000. That, my friends, represents an increase of actual administrative spending in those four years of approximately $1,000,000,000, or roughly 50 per cent; and that, I may add, is the most reckless and extravagant pace I have been able to discover in the statistical record of any peace-time government anywhere, any time.

It is an ultimate fact which is the exact reverse of the thing announced as fact by Republican leaders.

Let me repeat those figures so that the whole country can get them clearly in mind. Leaving out debt service charges in both instances, the cost of carrying on the Government's business was $2,187,000,000 in 1927; $3,168,000,000 in 1931—an increase in four years of $1,000,000,000.

That is the story on the spending side of the budget, but it is less than half of the whole appalling story.

On the income side of the budget, the record is worse. Unlike other taxing agencies, the Federal Government does not levy a direct tax on property. Therefore, you don't have to be an expert to know that when anything happens that violently contracts sales and incomes and the prices of securities and commodities, there is sure to be a similar violent contraction of Federal income and that a Government charged with maintaining the financial stability of the United States under all conditions is under a very solemn duty, in such an event, to take immediate steps to avoid a deficit.

Says Hoover Gave Out Inaccurate Reports.

Although six weeks had elapsed since the worst economic crash in history, the Federal budget of December, 1929, did not even refer to it. It estimated receipts for the year ended June 30, 1931, at $4,200,000,000, actually more than they had been in the preceding year of economic fantasy—a figure which obviously could not possibly be attained without immediate return to the exaggerated speculations of 1929. The administration advised no economy. On the contrary, it proposed a reduction of taxes and it blandly remarked, "Our finances are in sound condition * * * our estimated expenditures * * * are well within our expected receipts."

Against those estimated receipts placed at 4.2 billions by Secretary Mellon, the sad fact is that actual revenue turned out to be 3.3 billions —$900,000,000 less than the estimate—a cool billion of overestimating.

I recite the 1929 Federal incident to clarify what happened at Washington in 1930 and 1931. In December of 1930 a new budget appeared. Vast declines in every form of business activity were now crystallized and certain. The national income was in a nose dive and it was therefore certain that Federal income was on the verge of a catastrophe. But that new budget of December, 1930, recommended neither increased taxes nor decreased expenditure, although upon that recommendation depended the credit standing of this country.

The budget message of the President asserted that the deficit for 1931 would be only $180,000,000, and contained the statements: "Nor do I look with great concern upon this moderate deficit," and "Our Government finances are in a sound condition." A surplus of $30,000,000 was estimated for 1932—that is to say, the net deficit for the two years together was estimated at $150,000,000. Now, at this time, the President and the Secretary of the Treasury had plenty of experience with falling tax receipts.

The astonishing and inescapable fact is that no such results as those estimated could have been achieved without an immediate and complete business recovery from the practical paralysis then existing.

G. O. P. Doctrine Called Economic Heresies.

In other words, this 1930 budget can not fairly be called an estimate at all. It was an extreme hazard on the hope of an economic miracle—a gamble, if you please—on a highly improbable assumption, a gamble with your money and mine.

There is something much more than mere error in this kind of thing. Our people and the world are entitled to reasonable accuracy and reasonable prudence; and above all they are entitled to complete frankness. They have a right and a duty to place in retirement those who conceal realities and abuse confidence.

Remember these simple facts. On December 3, 1930, the administration of President Hoover estimated that on the following June 30 the Government would have a total deficit of $180,000,000, but that during the following fiscal year, in other words, on June 30, 1932, it would have a profit of $30,000,000, thus reducing the total deficit by June 30, 1932, to $150,000,000.

Now, my friends, I am going to give you a real shock. Instead of the estimated deficit of $150,000,000, the deficit on June 30, 1932, was for the two fiscal years $3,750,000,000.

No, I fear we can not call this budget an estimate—nor even a fair gamble. I don't know what to call this kind of representation of that kind of fact, but the name certainly is not candor. Nineteen hundred and thirty-one proved to be the worst year yet experienced in the depression. For my distinguished opponent it was the year when all his distinctive 1928 economic heresies seemed to come home to roost together.

Let us call the roll of them.

(1) The loans to "backward and crippled countries," which he said would provide uninterrupted employment and industrial activity by expanding out export trade no longer could be made.

(2) Retaliation against his monstrous Grundy tariff, against which the best economic and industrial thought in the country had stood in almost unanimous protest and against which it once more protested within the past week, and which was to cure our agriculture and maintain our industry, had begun to strangle world trade, including our own.

(3) Debtor nations (no longer sustained by our improvident loans and no longer able to export goods) were drained of gold for debts and, one by one, were forced to abandon specie payments.

(4) As a direct result of all these influences, our export markets dried up, our commodity prices slumped and our domestic business was declining at a more rapid rate than business in some of the backward and crippled countries. Unemployment also began to rise here in even greater proportions than in Europe. To top this ruin of all these seductive 1928 theories (which were to bring the millenium of abolished poverty) came the complete collapse of the 1929 and 1930 administration fiscal policy.

The truth about the shattering effect of all these homing heresies began to leak out as the summer of 1931 advanced. It is my opinion that in the conduct of national finances, as in the conduct of corporation finances, or family budgets, if things are not going as well as one had hoped, it is far better to face the truth than to try to hide it. That is why it was far more harmful to the Nation last autumn, and all through this year, to have the facts leak out than it would have been to have had them boldly and frankly disclosed to us when they were actually happening.

Again States Depression Is of American Origin.

My friends, the result of such a combination of disquieting revelations was inevitable. The very basis of confidence in our economic and financial structure both here and abroad was impaired. A fresh wave of liquidation ensued. Foreigners took gold back to their now shattered "backward and crippled countries"—until a cool billion had been drawn from our reserves. It was the stygian climax to the black business year of 1931.

I emphasize this history because our opponents have now become almost frantic in their insistence that this entire sequence originated abroad—that no American policy was in the least to blame, and that to say otherwise is what they call "hideous misrepresentation." The "foreign cause" alibi is like ascribing measles to its spots rather than to its characteristic germs.

No, we need not look abroad for scapegoats. We had ventured into the economic stratosphere on the wings of Mr. Hoover's novel, radical and unorthodox economic theories of 1928—the complete collapse of which brought the real crash in 1931. The Grundy tariff accentuated the drop. As hard reality rushed up to meet our fall, this administration did not see fit to adapt its fiscal policies to this inevitable consequence. It is a responsibility which no campaign alibi can avert, and today the day of reckoning is here.

The recent administration strategy in this campaign is a direct appeal to public sympathy for their agony of spirit in the dark hours of 1931-1932, when retribution for our chasing after strange economic gods overtook us. They protest against any assessment of just blame. But they protest in vain.

I want to say, with all sincerity, that I recite this record with reluctance. No man with a spark of humanity can fail to sympathize with our responsible leaders in hours of crisis. Politics or no politics, I pay my tribute to the devotion of the President. It is not true to say that he has not been unremitting in his efforts, and I for one have never heard it said. But I do indict his administration for wrong action, for delayed action and for lack of frankness and courage.

Before the administration partisans complain of this arraignment, they must remember that the American people are now about to exercise their democratic right of self-determination of their own fate and future. They must make a choice. The administration's appeal for sympathy is not based on any frank acknowledgment of the failure of the policies so clearly portrayed by these tragic events. It is, on the contrary, a denial that these principles have failed. Indeed, it persists in the same course, and even presumes to ask admiration for the stubborn ruggedness of that persistence.

Says It Is His Duty To Portray Errors.

In such circumstances I should fail utterly in my duty to the American people if I did not fearlessly portray these errors and link them directly to the havoc which they have brought and which they threaten to continue.

The autumn of 1931 witnessed, then, the complete wreckage of the administration program to that date—the collapse of its entire economic philosophy. The convening of the Seventy-second Congress last December marked a new phase. The President appeared with his December, 1931, budget message. That was a fateful moment. That was the time for an honest demonstration to the world that might have set the whole world trend of economic events in an upward direction or at least checked the decline. All that it was necessary to do was finally to end the two years of vacillation and secretiveness—to tell the truth to the Congress of the United States—to rely on it to balance the budget and establish American credit in the eyes of all the world.

This administration specifically acknowledged the necessity for that. It said it was going to balance the budget. Then it said it was balancing the budget, and, finally, it said it had balanced the budget and now, months later, it insists that because it has balanced the budget, it has saved the Gibraltar of world stability and prevented the overthrow of our form of government. If all this is true the administration has done well. If it is not true, then the administration stands convicted of a new and fatal trifling with the welfare of our people and the credit of our country.

Another Staggering Deficit Is Seen Ahead.

Let us not waste words. I now quote from the daily Treasury statement at the end of the first quarter of the current fiscal year, made three weeks ago, on September 30, 1932:

For the corresponding quarter of last year the deficit was only $380,496,584, but at the end of the year it was $2,885,000,000. There is, therefore, strong indications that we are in for another staggering deficit. If the present rate continues, the true deficit as of June 30 next will be over $1,600,000,000, not as large as it was in the unprecedented fiscal year of 1932, but so great that it makes us catch our breath.

I regret to say that the appeal of this administration for applause for its soundness and courage last winter is simply not based on facts. The budget is not balanced, and the whole job must be done over again in the next session of Congress. Who is to blame for this new blunder? I can not answer that question better than to refer you to the dispassionate review of the last session of Congress made last Friday by my running mate, the Speaker of the House, John Garner. No one who will take the trouble to read that speech will doubt that the patriotic determination of a willing Congress to balance this budget at any cost was frustrated by the same kind of concealment and vacillation that produced the staggering deficits of the years ended June 30, 1931 and 1932.

It is very clear that, under repeated insistence that the budget was being balanced, Congress gave our Treasury—without hesitation or limit—every cent of revenue it asked for and that, at the end, the administration assured Congress and the country that the task had been accomplished.

I have already shown how unreliable these constant assurances are. It is not seemly to conjecture motives, but I think it is fair to say of the whole record of administration policy in the last four years reveals that it has been afraid to trust the people of the United States with the true facts about their affairs. That is a fundamental error which shows unfamiliarity with the true bases of American character.

While the President claims that he did finally recommend new taxes, I fear that this courage came two years too late and in far too scanty measure. It explains "prosperity around the corner," it explains two complete concealments of deficits and the insufficiency of the action taken last winter. It is an error of weakness and an error which I assure you I shall not make.

Our Federal extravagance and improvidence bears a double evil. First, our people and our business can not carry its excessive burdens of taxation; second, our credit structure is impaired by the unorthodox Federal financing made necessary by the unprecedented magnitude of these deficits. The latter is the more technical, but to my mind the more immediately dangerous evil, and, at the risk of being tedious to many of my audience, I want to ask their indulgence while I talk, for a moment, straight to our financiers.

Bank Credit Curbed By Financing Deficit.

Instead of financing the $1,000,000,000 deficit of 1931 in the regular way, our Government simply absorbed that much of the lending capacity of banks and by so much impaired the credit available for business. In that year the amount of Government obligations held by our banks increased by a little more than $1,000,000,000.

You know as well as I do that this administration's claims that it has provided credit for industry and agriculture by pouring credit into banks are not frank. Commercial credit has continuously contracted and is contracting now. Most of this new Government-created credit has been taken to finance the Government's continuing deficits. The truth is that our banks are financing these stupendous deficits and that the burden is absorbing their resources. All this is highly undesirable and wholly unnecessary. It arises from one cause only, and that is the unbalanced budget and the continued failure of this administration to take effective steps to balance it. If that budget had been fully and honestly balanced in 1930, as it could have been, some of the 1931 collapse would have been avoided. Even if it had been balanced in 1931, as it could have been, much of the extreme dip in 1932 would have been obviated. Our financial men know the unnecessary muddle that has accumulated and is still accumulating in Washington.

Now how can we continue to countenance such a condition? In all conscience, can an administration which has so frequently failed in a matter so directly touching your own responsibilities ask for your support and trifle with your common sense by these campaign alibis about mysterious foreign forces and this specious talk about sound fiscal policies and administration? Would it not be infinitely better to clear this whole subject of obscurity—to present the facts squarely to the Congress and the people of the United States and secure the one sound foundation of permanent economic recovery—a complete and honest balance of the Federal budget? In all earnestness I leave the answer to your common sense and judgment.

The other bad effect of this fiscal mismanagement is not at all technical. It is the burden of high cost on the backs of all our people. I can state the condition best by quoting one paragraph from a document published a week ago and signed by both Alfred E. Smith and Calvin Coolidge:

Death-Bed Repentance On Economy Assailed.

"All the costs of local, State and National Government must be reduced without fear and without favor. Unless the people, through unified action, arise and take charge of their Government they will find that their Government has taken charge of them. Independence and liberty will be gone and the general public will find itself in a condition of servitude to an aggregation of organized and selfish minorities."

Every word of that warning is true, and the first and most important and necessitous step in balancing our Federal budget is to reduce expense.

The air is now full of Republican death-bed repentance on the subject of economy, but we must look deeper than these eleventh-hour pronouncements. You can not go very far with any real Federal economy without a complete change of concept of what are the proper functions and limits of the Federal Government itself.

Perhaps we can get some glimpse of the President's underlying idea about the Federal Government from his 1928 speeches. He proposed, you remember, "a new thing in Government." He says he "reorganized the Department of Commerce on a greater scale than has ever been attempted or achieved by any government in the world." In his book, "The New Day," he says, "A Nation which is spending $90,000,000,000 a year can well afford a few hundred million for a workable program."

I could go on quoting for a good many minutes, but perhaps the point could be made clearer by recalling that the Department of Commerce went through even the heavy war strain on about $13,000,000 a year. When Mr. Hoover left it, it was spending $39,000,000 and for 1933 it estimated it will spend $43,000,000. It is now housed in what is facetiously called in Washington the "Temple of Fact Finding," which cost the people considerably more than the Capitol of the United States.

That record may explain the 50 per cent increase in Government overhead in four years, 1927-1931 and I am sure that the whole group of quotations reveal why you can never expect any important economy from this administration. It is committed to the idea that we ought to center control of everything in Washington as rapidly as possible. That was the idea that increased Government cost by a billion in four years. Now, ever since the days of Thomas Jefferson, that has been the exact reverse of the Democratic concept—which is to permit Washington to take from the States nothing more than is necessary to keep abreast of the march of our changing economic situation.

In the latter philosophy and not in the philosophy of Mr. Hoover (which I think is responsible for so much of our trouble) I shall approach the problem of carrying out the plain precept of our party, which is to reduce the cost of the current Federal Government operation by 25 per cent.

Stresses His Familiarity With National Procedure.

Of course that means a complete realignment of the unprecedented bureaucracy that has assembled in Washington in the past four years. I am no stranger to Washington. I knew it at first-hand during the administrations of Theodore Roosevelt and William H. Taft. I served in Washington for seven and a half years during the Wilson administration. I have some familiarity with the psychology of the administration of the National Government. More than that I have conducted for four years the administrative and executive affairs and the policies of a State that has 13,000,000 inhabitants.

Now, I am going to disclose to you a definite, personal conclusion which I adopted the day after I was nominated in Chicago. Here it is:

Before any man enters my Cabinet he must give me a two-fold pledge of:

1. Absolute loyalty to the Democratic platform, and especially to its economy plank.

2. Complete cooperation with me, looking to economy and reorganization in his department.

I regard reduction in Federal spending as one of the most important issues of this campaign. In my opinion it is the most direct and effective contribution that government can make to business.

In accordance with this fundamental policy, it is equally necessary to eliminate from Federal budget-making during this emergency all new items except such as relate to direct relief of unemployment.

As a part of this phase of the problem I note that former President Coolidge is reported as having said in a speech in New York City:

"An early and timely word from the Democratic candidate for President that he would reject the proposal to increase the national debt by $2,300,000,000 to pay a bonus would have been a great encouragement to business, reduced unemployment and guaranteed the integrity of the national credit. While he remained silent, economic recovery was measurably impeded."

Against Immediate Payment of Bonus.

That charge is baseless and absurd for the reason that last April my views on the subject were widely published and have been subsequently frequently quoted. I said: practice sense, a government running behind $2,000,000,000 annually can consider the anticipation of bonus payment until it has a balanced budget, not only on paper but with a surplus of cash in the Treasury."

No one, for political purposes or otherwise, has the right in the absence of explicit statement from me to assume that my views have changed. They have not. So much for another effort by Republican leaders to preach an unwarranted gospel of fear and panic to the American electorate.

I have sought to make two things clear: First, that we can make savings by reorganization of existing departments, by eliminating function, by abolishing many of the innumerable boards and commissions which over a long period of years have grown up as excrescencies on the regular system. These sayings can properly be made to total many hundreds of millions of dollars a year.

Secondly, I hope that it will not be necessary to increase the present scale of taxes, and I call definite attention to the fact that as soon as the Democratic platform pledge is enacted into legislation modifying the Volstead act a source of new revenue amounting to several hundred millions of dollars a year will be made available toward the balancing of the budget.

I refer specifically to a tax on beer which would be raised through the sale of beer in those States, and those States only, which by State law allow the sale of beer. At the same time I reiterate the simple language of the Democratic platform which opposes the return of the saloon, as follows:

"We urge the enactment of such measures by the several States as will actually promote temperance, effectively prevent the return of the saloon and bring the liquor traffic into the open under complete supervision and control by the State."

Denies Assuming Role of Prophet.

The above two categorical statements are aimed at a definite balancing of the budget. At the same time, if starvation and dire need on the part of any of our citizens make necessary the appropriation of additional funds which would keep the budget out of balance, I shall not hesitate to tell the American people the full truth and recommend to them the expenditure of this additional amount.

My friends, these have been unhealthy years for prophets, and I hasten to disclaim that role. But one thing I know. A powerful cause contributing to economic disaster has been this inexcusable fiscal administration and the obscurity and uncertainty that has attended and grown out of it. There it remains for all to see—a veritable cancer in the body politic and economic. Is it prophecy to assure you that if we remove this destructive growth we shall move to better things?

To my mind this is so plain and persuasive as scarcely to be open to argument. As I said in the beginning, this is the one field in which business is wholly in the grip of Government.

By the same token, it is the one field where Government can make the greatest possible present contribution to recovery. To this contribution I here pledge the utmost of my faith and my ability. I am as certain as mortal man can be certain of anything in the future that from the moment that we set our hands openly and frankly and courageously to this problem, we shall have reached the end of our long, hard, downward road and shall have started on the upward trail. We shall have built for economic recovery a firm footing, on a path broad, true and straight. Join me, and "Let's Go!"

Trade Will Get Better, Roosevelt Says in Ohio

Steubenville, Ohio, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, Democratic presidential nominee, told a crowd estimated by local Democratic leaders at 10,000 persons here today that business conditions will be better after his election in November and his inauguration in March.

Gov. Roosevelt said he was impressed by the number of closed factories, steel mills and mines in western Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio. He passed through three States by automobile in a speaking tour.

Puts Welfare of America First, Dr. Price Tells Democratic Rally.

Gov. Roosevelt was characterized as "putting the welfare of human beings above that of the dollar and Wall street," by Dr. William Jennings Price, former United States Minister to Panama, in an address at a Democratic rally at 1320 G street northwest, last night. The rally was sponsored by the War Veterans Democratic Club.

Other speakers were Daniel Hickey, local attorney, and Martin Beehan, secretary of the club. Ralph A. Cusick, president of the group, presided.

A radio hookup enabled the persons who attended to listen to the speeches of Roosevelt and of Alfred E. Smith.

bonus payment until it has a balanced budget.

Repeats Bonus Stand.

The Democratic presidential candidate repeated a statement he said had been frequently quoted since he made it last April.

The statement said:

"I do not see how as a matter of practical sense a government running behind $2,000,000,000 annually can consider the anticipation of bonus payment until it has a balanced budget, not only on paper but with a surplus of cash in the Treasury."

"No one, for political purposes or otherwise has the right in the absence of explicit statement from me to assume that my views have changed," he said. "They have not." Mr. Roosevelt related that Calvin Coolidge in his recent New York speech had said an early word from the Democratic candidate on the bonus question would have encouraged business.

25,000 in Stands.

Two hours before time for him to speak, hundreds of persons were passing through the turnstiles into the park, and half an hour before he arrived park officials estimated that 25,000 persons were in the triple-tiered grandstand.

Before the arrival of Mr. Roosevelt, the crowd was called to order and a soprano sang the National Anthem. As various local political dignitaries arrived, the band left the speaker's platform to surrender their seats.

Torchlight March.

A moment later, another band signaled the entrance of a torchlight procession that marched around the field, bearing red flares that sent streamers of smoke curling off under the brilliant searchlights that lighted up the field. There were numerous Negroes in the group of marchers.

As the music and clamor of the procession died away, David L. Lawrence, chairman of the Allegheny County Democratic committee, came forward to predict that a Democratic President and Congress would be elected with the aid of millions of independent Republicans and members of other political parties. In the midst of his speech, Father James R. Cox, of Pittsburgh, came up on the field on his way to the speaker's stand. He announced that he would withdraw his own candidacy as head of the jobless party, and called upon his followers to support Roosevelt.

LA FOLLETTE BACKS ROOSEVELT'S CAUSE

Urges Democrats for President, Governor and Senator; Storm Results.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 19 (U.P.).—Progressive Republican Senator Robert M. La Follette, jr., indorsed the Democratic presidential candidacy of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt today and thereby began another of Wisconsin's political wars.

In urging election of Democratic candidates for President, governor and United States senator, young La Follette brought down upon him the wrath of regular Republicans who indicated they would begin their greatest fight to prevent his reelection in 1934.

La Follette denounced President Hoover and the other regular Republican candidates, switched his support to their Democratic opponents, and mentioned possibility of a third party in the future.

"Regardless of the outcome of this election, I shall continue to work in the Senate with the Progressive group, fighting for the economic and political principles in which we believe, firmly convinced that ultimately there will be a new political realignment that will afford a definite party organization for those who believe in the fundamental concepts of democracy," he said.

"From the progressive point of view Herbert Hoover has been wrong on every important issue which has arisen during his term of office," said Wisconsin's senior senator.

Wausau, Wis., Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Philip F. La Follette, here today to address a meeting of farmers, declined to comment on the action of his brother, Senator Robert M. La Follette, in advocating that Wisconsin Progressives vote for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt for President.

"I have nothing to say at this time," the governor told newspapermen. "I may have some comment later."

Omaha Banker Declares Nebraska Is for Hoover

(Associated Press.)

J. P. McDermott, Omaha, banker and Republican State treasurer for Nebraska, said yesterday he had told President Hoover during a conference at the White House that the State would be listed in the Republican column in November.

"Nebraska will go Republican," McDermott told newspapermen, "despite the stand of Senator Norris against the President. Norris has jumped the reservation before and the State has gone Republican."

Bolivia Names Woman Agent

Senora Abelli Is Commissioned to Present Nation's Position on Gran Chaco to Feminine Interests in America; She Was Born in United States.

Feminine charm has been enlisted by the Bolivian government to augment the arguments of diplomacy in its controversy with Paraguay over the Gran Chaco. For the last five months the solution of the Chaco dispute has defied the efforts of the League of Nations and the Commission of Neutrals. Now President Salamanca of Bolivia has commissioned Senora Luis O. Abelli, American-born wife of the former Minister here, to present the case for Bolivia to the women of America.

Senora Abelli was the former Chrystal Hyland, of Portland, Oreg., and met her husband when he was the representative of the Bolivian government at the exposition in San Francisco. Since then she has sojourned in her adopted country and upon her return to the United States last month was appointed by the president to carry the Bolivian message to the United States.

Senor Abelli left yesterday for New York, where he will embark on his return to Bolivia. He was succeeded here by Dr. Enrique Finot, special delegate of Bolivia in the Chaco controversy.

Senora Abelli speaks Spanish with equal facility as English. She has lived for many years in Bolivia and knows well the customs and language of the people. She said yesterday:

"I shall be so happy to be the agent of my government in presenting the real facts of the Chaco controversy to the American people. I have been asked by the National Women's Party to speak before them in Baltimore and again here in Washington. I shall very probably consider some of the offers that have been graciously made me to speak also on the radio.

"Of course it will not be so very easy for me now that my husband has returned to Bolivia. However, I know the origin and history of the Chaco question from hearing my husband discuss it with the government in La Paz and I shall try to present to the women of America the real facts of the situation."

Senora Abelli is a beautiful woman whose effectiveness as a speaker is heightened by her ability to speak in both Spanish and English. She returned to her adopted country last summer and was on one of her husband's estancias for many months, with her children.

This will be one of the rare cases in history that an American-born woman has stumped on behalf of a foreign government in the United States.

BANKING REFORMS URGED BY THOMAS

Tells Kentucky Crowd Only Socialist Leader Could Rebuild System.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 19 (U.P.).—Norman Thomas urged upon conservative Kentuckians tonight his election as Socialist President of the United States. He said only a Socialist President could rebuild the country's banking system, which he called "the most corrupt and incompetent feature of American life."

He said the Insull collapse, the Kreuger disaster and innumerable bank failures prove that socialization of the banking structure was necessary.

The Socialist program, he said, would attack the banking problem with the five following reforms:

1. Socialization of the Federal Reserve System.
2. Expansion of the postal savings bank.
3. Publicly owned municipal nad State banks.
4. Reserve banks empowered to lend directly to municipal, State and Federal authorities which operate socialized public utilities.
5. A central financial administration connected with the Federal Reserve System and also with a national economic planning council, with "steadily increasing powers over the issuance of credit and the direction of investment into industrial channels."

Resignation Rumors Spiked by Stimson

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Stimson yesterday jokingly dismissed rumors from the Orient about his possible resignation.

At a press conference, he said he has no thought of resigning. I may be about to get the bounce, but if I am I do not know anything about it."

REST ETERNAL.
As the twilight shades were falling
O'er this still October day,
God Almighty to His Heaven
Called our father dear away.

Called him to the golden mansions
Which his life so pure and fair,
While on earth, so faithful toiled,
Silently was building there.

We shall miss his earthly presence
And his spoken words of love,
But we know that love will guide us
From his holy home above.
By his devoted daughter,

LAMMOT DU PONT TO SUPPORT HOOVER

Republican Policy on Tariff and Prohibition Pleases Delaware Magnate.

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Lammot du Pont, president of the E. I. du Pont De Nemours & Co., and chairman of the board of General Motors Co., announced tonight that he intends to vote the Republican ticket.

In a formal statement he said that after analyzing the positions of the major parties on the economic situation and prohibition, it is the only course to follow at the coming election.

"It seems probable," he said, "that the Democratic proposals, in anticipation, as well as in operation, would seriously disturb business, with resultant unfortunate effect upon the labor situation, at a time when business recovery is making substantial headway. Industry and labor can not afford at this time to indorse any change in our present tariff policy, which must be maintained at least until economic equilibrium is re-established."

On the liquor question, Du Pont said, "the Democratic party seems to have no logical plan with which to replace Nation-wide prohibition."

GOV. RITCHIE TO GET ST. MARYS PROBLEM

ers of St. Marys County, met downstairs to draw up plans of action.

The commissioners, headed by Thomas Harrison, voted to offer a reward of $300 for the apprehension and conviction of parties responsible for the present reign of terror throughout the county.

Members of the citizens' committee, appointed to visit Gov. Ritchie, included Cornelius Bull, Richard H. Sears (one of the early hold-up victims), Miss Dell M. France, R. N. Pembroke, J. A. Cecil, the Rev. Mr. Woodward and the Rev. Joseph S. Knight, a Catholic priest.

Asked if he thought it was probable that Gov. Ritchie would send troops to patrol the county, States Attorney John H. T. Briscoe said tonight that perhaps, as a "last resort," military forces may be brought into use.

The State's attorney refused to comment on Sheriff Hammett's action in declining to deputize State police.

Since the first attack and robbery of citizens in this little community more than two weeks ago an increasing dissension has arisen among law-enforcement agencies. Even the sheriff's deputy, John T. Smith, has bitterly attacked his superior's attitude throughout the whole affair.

Robbery in Baltimore.

Interviewed shortly after the first outbreak, which rapidly developed into a series of ten robberies and assaults on residents in isolated hamlets and motorists traveling State highways, Sheriff Hammett denounced public criticism and declared he was doing all in his power to apprehend the criminals.

Deputy Smith said that he had often been "called down" for soliciting the aid of State police, and that within a short time he would be prepared to turn in his badge and work independently of the sheriff's office.

It has been several days since the marauders have appeared in this section. It was believed, however, the "Black Shirt" gang was responsible for the robbery of a Baltimore doctor in his office this afternoon. A loot of $100 was obtained from Dr. John F. Hawkins.

State police are confident they can apprehend the bandits "witnin twelve hours" if given the authority. At present their power rests only in violations of State traffic laws.

BAKER URGES LAW ON VOTE COERCION

Will Make Three Campaign Speeches, in Brooklyn, Boston and Indiana.

New York, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Federal and State laws "prohibiting managers of industrial enterprises from giving political advice to their employes" were advocated today by Newton D. Baker.

The wartime Secretary of War took that stand in commenting, at Democratic national headquarters, on a telegram received there stating that three large Ohio rubber companies were "carrying on a campaign of intimidation among workers in an effort to secure votes for Hoover."

Officers of the three companies named in the telegram, which came from an Ohio Democratic leader, subsequently denied the report.

Baker, who comes from Ohio, was asked if at present there is any law in his State against political "intimidation."

"Everybody intimidates everybody freely out there," he replied.

The former Cabinet member came to national headquarters to arrange a stumping tour on behalf of Gov. Roosevelt. It was announced he would deliver three addresses, in Brooklyn November 1, in Boston November 2 and in Indiana at a place and on a day to be annouced later.

James A. Farley, national chairman, who made public the telegram from Ohio and called the reported activity in the rubber plants "the last frantic move of Republican leaders to re-elect President Hoover," tonight told of what he called "more Republican propaganda."

He exhibited a series of colored cards issued by the National Association of Manufacturers. All were headed "Tariff Facts." One read: "The United States has never had good times during any period when the tariff was not truly protective."

Roosevelt Ford Owners' Alliance Is Organized

Formation of the "Roosevelt Ford Owners Alliance" for the "purpose of counteracting effect, if any, of effort of Henry Ford to intimidate his workmen to vote for Hoover" was made known here last night in a telegram to the Democratic candidate at Pittsburgh, from Jerome T. Harriman, former circus agent.

Harriman said in his message that hundreds of thousands of windshield stickers bearing the slogan "This Ford votes for Roosevelt"" would be distributed. The organization is growing rapidly, Harriman declared here last night.

Wigwam as Smith referred directly to the man he had fought for the presidential nomination at Chicago.

"I have been privileged in the past—and from a Democratic standpoint I think the leaders of the party will still extend me the privilege of speaking on behalf of the rank and file of our great party in this city—to know that the loyalty, the devotion of the great Democratic organization of this city will be exerted to the last degree in favor of the election of Roosevelt and Garner."

It was some time before Smith could continue his address. In winding up his speech he said:

"The whole world today, not only New York City alone, New York State on the United States, but the whole world is being chastened by the fire of adversity, by the paralysis of business, of industry, of agriculture, and all the ills and all the things that grow from it—unemployment, and sickness, and starvation, and possible death, and the only thing for the American people to do is to keep up their spirit, to keep alive in their heart their devotion to this country and its ultimate principles and what it can accomplish for them.

"And the bright star that is guiding us into a harbor and haven of repose is complete and full Democratic victory in November."

Tonight's address was a prelude to Smith's stumping New Jersey, Rhode Island and Massachusetts for the national ticket.

The crowd cheered for him long before he arrived in the jammed Tammany auditorium. Crowds packed hallways trying to get in. Thousands stood in Union Square outside or in streets bordering the classical-appearing Tammany building listening to the addresses by way of amplifiers.

It was to Senator Robert F. Wagner, candidate for reelection; to Lieut. Gov. Lehman, gubernatorial nominee, and to the State campaign that Smith devoted most of his remarks.

McCUEN IS ORDERED BACK TO POWER POST

that the commission "carefully consider whether the secretary's leave ought not to be extended indefinitely."

Full responsibility for granting a payless furlough to McCuen from September 3 to November 5 was taken by Chairman Smith. In his letter to the secretary he said he had advised Senator Walsh the services of McCuen were needed in Washington, but that the condition of the commission's finances was such that he was impelled to grant the leave.

"In short," he quoted from a letter to Walsh, "I regarded the furlough of Mr. McCuen as solely an economy measure, with some sacrifice of efficiency, but with the avoidance of salary cuts elsewhere. Had the current appropriation been adequate to meet the pay roll I would not have approved this absence of Mr. McCuen, as I told him when he made his application."

New York, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Joseph R. McCuen, secretary of the Power Commission, said tonight he would leave Republican Eastern headquarters immediately for Washington.

He had no comment to make, he said, on the commission's advice to him to terminate his work with the Republican national committee, because he had not received copies either of the resolution adopted or the letter from Chairman Smith.

"I will, however, of course, comply with any request they have made," he added.

Campaign leaders at Eastern headquarters said McCuen had served without salary in the speakers' bureau there, had "practically completed" the work he set out to do, and had planned to return to Washington this week.

Hoover Stands in Rain; Camera Fails to Work

(Associated Press.)

A camera refused to cooperate yesterday with a photographer and President Hoover.

The Chief Executive stood, head uncovered, in a drizzling rain for a series of pictures with a delegation from the convention of the National League of District Postmasters.

As Mr. Hoover was returning to his office, a photographer ran after him, calling out that he had failed to "get a picture" because of difficulty with his camera.

Smiling, the President returned to stand with the postmasters for several minutes more, but the camera again proved balky and Mr. Hoover finally returned to his offices—the photograph untaken.

GARNER LEADERSHIP IS TARGET FOR MILLS

Charges Democrats' Record in House Was Worst in History.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

An unqualified charge that the Democratic record on fiscal measures in the last session of Congress was the most reckless and irresponsible in the whole history of the United States was made last night by Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills.

In a national campaign address broadcast from Baltimore, Mr. Mills replied in detail to the radio address delivered last Friday night from New York by Speaker John N. Garner, the Democratic vice presidential nominee.

The complete breakdown of Democratic leadership in the House on both the tax and economy bills was due directly to Mr. Garner's unwillingness to cooperate in the non-partisan budget-balancing program, Mr. Mills charged, and the failure of the House to hasten the vital reconstruction measures was described as a blow to American economy from which the Nation even now has not fully recovered.

Center on Garner Record.

In reviewing by date and title the various measures of inflation and Treasury raiding presented by Democratic members of the House and supported by Speaker Garner, Secretary Mills served tacit notice on the Democratic high command that the Speaker's legislative record between December, 1931, and July 16, 1932, is to be the focal point of the intensified Republican offensive between now and November 8.

Time and again during the long session, Secretary Mills said, the distressing state of affairs in industry and banking was dangerously aggravated on all fronts by the failure of the House to deal vigorously with the vital fiscal problems before it. He cited as an example the passage of the Patman bonus bill by the Democratic majority just at a time when bank failures were at high tide, and when the low price of United States Government bonds reflected an extremely critical situation in Federal finances.

Similarly, the Garner public buildings bill was thrown into the legislative hopper precisely at the moment the final agreement on the tax bill had partially checked the nation-wide money panic.

Despite bank failures and gold raiding from abroad, Secretary Mills declared, the establishment of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in February and the enactment of the Glass-Steagall bill, checked the acute financial situation, and for about two weeks in February "material improvement took place."

"But in the beginning of March, the confidence of the country was again terribly shaken by the disastrous collapse of the Democratic House organization in its handling of the revenue bill. From that day forward confidence was not restored until the Democratic House, which continued to show an entire lack of stability, went home."

Blamed on Garner.

Entire responsibility for this disastrous breakdown of the legislative function during the money crisis was attributed to Speaker Garner.

"The Speaker quotes at length from the heroic speech he delivered on the floor of the House in favor of a balanced budget. He did not tell you, however, when that speech was delivered. It was delivered after the battle was over; after the ways and means committee bill had been torn to shreds; after his own party had repudiated its leaders."

In contrast with Mr. Garner's militant leadership in the case of the Philippine independence bill, which was passed under a special rule with but 40 minutes' debate, Secretary Mills cited the record the tax and economy measures, each of which was hacked to pieces on the floor.

"He was quite willing to drive through a bill providing for independence of the Philippines. He took a similar course with the (Goldsborough) bill providing for price manipulation; and when it came to the great pork-barrel measure, with its 60 closely printed pages of post-offices involving the unjustifiable expenditure of $1,200,000,000, he left nothing to chance. He not only brought the bill in under a rule which forbade amendment, but he called a party caucus. He bound every Democratic member under the lash of party discipline, and with that help he drove the measure through.

"But the great revenue measure—the fruit of seven weeks' study and hard work by the ways and means committee—was allowed to be torn to pieces on the floor of the House without the protection of a rule or a party caucus, and with the Speaker himself silent."

Says Record Is Worst.

With the economy bill, savings of $200,000,000 in the committee bill were whittled to $30,000,000 on the floor of the House. The Garner building bill and the Patman bonus bill followed.

"Thus, in the course of two weeks the Democratic House voted practically to double the expenditures for the fiscal year 1933, to unbalance the budget on a scale which would have threatened the credit of the Government.

"I venture to say," Secretary Mills concluded, "that in the long history of American Congresses the financial record of the Democratic House of Representatives during the last session is the worst ever made."

G. O. P. WATERWAY PROGRAM PRAISED

Hurley Gives Hoover Credit for Progress on System to Aid Farmers.

Omaha, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Secretary Hurley told a farm belt audience tonight that more progress has been made toward creating a national inland waterway system under President Hoover's administration "than in any like period in the history of the Nation."

"Development of the great inland waterway system together with the assured completion of the St. Lawrence seaway will restore the Middle West to a position of economic equality with other sections of the United States," the Secretary of War added.

Hurley said the inland waterway system would bring Midwestern producers 1,200 miles nearer to the sea, save from 8 to 10 cents a bushel on grain shipped abroad, a like percentage on meats and other food products, and produce a similar saving on materials brought from the seaboard to the Middle West.

"Not only as Secretary of Commerce, but also as President during the past three and one-half years," he said, "Herbert Hoover has worked unceasingly toward the realization of this goal so vital to the welfare of the interior section.

"Approximately $750,000,000 is being expended during the present fiscal year for all forms of consrtuction, including river and harbor improvement, as against a normal annual expenditure of about $250,000,000.

"The three-fold expansion of construction work represents about the maximum which can be carried on without sacrificing sound engineering and sound economic principles, and without placing an unreasonable and unprofitable burden upon the taxpayers."

JOHNSON IS ELECTED SCHOOL BOARD HEAD

warded to the District Commissioners.

Representatives of Foxhall Village Citizens Association protested before the board against erection of the proposed Foxhall School at a site on Foxhall road between Q street and Volta place. A further hearing was ordered.

Lieut. Louis A. Puckett, U. S. N., representing 25 home owners in the Foxhall Village section, read views from that group. That property values in the section would be depreciated, the proposed architectural design of the school would clash with the motif of Foxhall Village and availability of another site nearby were among reasons he cited for action toward selecting another location for the school. The board directed all concerned to appear at a hearing, the date of which is yet to be decided.

Decision was made to furnish the Petworth Citizens Association, at the request of the latter group, with the names and addresse of the children attending the Bates road portable schools. The action was taken although Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Ballou suggested that the usual procedure is not to divulge such information.

The Petworth group is contesting erection of a permanent school for colored children, to take the places of the Bates road portable and on the same site. The board, however, directed that not only the information requested, but the names and addresses of children of the neighborhood forced to go to other sections of the city for school facilities be given the Petworth organization.

Announcement was made that hearings on estimates for the 1934 school budget will begin Saturday morning.

Edward A. Williams, of the Roosevelt High School Parent-Teacher Association, urged the board to use its best efforts to have its $75,000 estimate for the Roosevelt Stadium retained in the 1934 budget.

DUNCAN SENTENCED TO 3 YEARS IN FRAUD

Former Arlington Clerk Is Denied New Trial by Judge McCarthy.

Overruling a motion for a new trial, Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy, of Arlington County, Va., yesterday sentenced William H. Duncan, former county clerk, to serve three years in the State penitentiary at Richmond. Duncan was convicted in August on a charge of misappropriating public funds.

Judge McCarthy suspended execution of the sentence until February 20, 1933, in order that defense attorneys might complete preparation of an appeal to the Virginia Supreme Court. Duncan was released on bond of $5,000.

Defense had presented seventeen grounds on which the plea for a new trial was based. These were overruled by the court on the ground that all of them had been gone into at the trial and overruled.

The defense attorneys had presented an affidavit averring that James A. Dugan, a member of the jury which tried Duncan, had made derogatory remarks regarding Duncan in the course of the trial. The juror denied flatly he had made such a statement or that he had at any time discussed the trial.

Duncan was convicted of having misused funds paid him as county clerk by the State highway department in land condemnation proceedings. The owner of the land in question, Mrs. Virginia Van Every, had appealed the condemnation award to the Supreme Court of the State and the funds were being held by Duncan as county clerk.

Defense claimed the funds were not the property of the State, as charged in the indictment.

Dickinson Hints At Rift by Foes

Sees Trouble Over Prizes Offered Progressives for Assistance.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Dickinson (Republican), Iowa, in a statement last night said that Gov. Roosevelt and Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic leader in the Senate, apparently intend "to compensate for the support of Republican progressives at the expense of prominent leaders of their own party."

The Iowan's statement, distributed through the Republican national committee, said Robinson proposed "that Republican progressives shall retain their committee chairmanships if the Democrats gain control of the Senate" in the next Congress.

"I wonder," Dickinson continued, "how this proposition would appeal to that fighting Democrat from Arizona, Senator Henry F. Ashurst, who presumably would be asked to forgo his right to become chairman of the great Senate judiciary committee in favor of George W. Norris, of Nebraska. What would Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, of Florida, think of forgoing the chairmanship of the important commerce committee in favor of Hiram Johnson, of California?"

French 'Champagne Fleet' Waits for Repeal in U. S.

1,200,000 Quart Bottles Could Be Shipped Almost Immediately; Letters From Prospective American Agents Pour in to Association's Firms.

Rheims, France, Oct. 19 (U.P.).—Within a week after prohibition is repealed in the United States, if it is wiped off the statute books, a fleet of "champagne ships" will be steaming to American ports bearing the largest cargo of bubbling wine in history, a survey revealed today.

In ten days' time the cellars of this unique wine region can move enough champagne to provide one glass for 1 out of every 20 persons in the United States. Twelve hundred thousand quart bottles could be shipped almost immediately. These bottles would provide 6,000,000 glasses of champagne.

That Americans have become increasingly thirsty is shown by the great gain in mail from the United States received by the 33 firms of the champagne association. Most of the letters are from prospective agents and others who want to be in the champagne business when and if the end of the dry period comes.

The champagne makers are not excited over the possibility of million-bottle orders. In the past they have sold as many as 23,000,000 bottles in one year to meet the world's thirst. Before prohibition the United States received 4,000,000 bottles annually.

Hard times have cut into champagne production more heavily than has prohibition, the French believe. Even under prohibition the producers received one American order for 500,000 quart bottles "for delivery in France and for resale elsewhere."

That was several years ago. Since then belief in the demise of prohibition has made the champagne people wary of dealing with rumrunners.

To the people of Rheims, the most pathetic aspect of prohibition in America has been the absence of champagne at the christening of ships and airplanes.

DEDICATION FINISHES POSTAL CONVENTION

Postmasters Ask Unlimited Terms in Appointments of Third Class.

The dedication of a memorial stone at the grave of the late national secretary, V. H. Stoneaifer, at Mount Olivet Cemetery, concluded yesterday's program of the twenty-seventh annual convention of the National League of District Postmasters. President E. A. Meeks presided and delivered the dedicatory address.

At the morning session at the Willard Hotel a resolution demanding congressional legislation providing for appointment of all third-class postmasters for unlimited terms was drafted by the resolutions committee of the organization. This resolution will be presented to the convention for adoption tomorrow.

Another action to be proposed will be that fourth-class postmasters be given the benefit of the retirement act. They are at present the only branch of the civil service not possessing this privilege.

Speakers heard yesterday included Thomas M. Milligan, chief postal inspector of the Postoffice Department; Louis Brehm, director of the service relations unit of the Postoffice Department; Thomas F. Fitch, superintendent of the Postoffice Service; M. T. Finnan, secretary of the National Association of Letter Carriers, and Edmund B. Windsor, of New York, a director of the organization. Mr. Finnan advocated repeal of the economy act.

President Hoover received the delegates at the White House soon after noon. At today's sessions several resolutions will be offered for adoption. The delegates will also hear an address by Representative Clyde Kelly, of Pennsylvania, a member of the House postoffice committee.

Chicago, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—A crowd of several hundred unemployed receiving aid from the Illinois Relief Commission went on "strike" today because their rations had been cut and refused to accept any aid.

Announcing their intentions to force the commission to increase curtailed rations, the unemployed picked out convenient places on the sidewalk and sat, to enforce their demands. No violence was attempted or threatened.

ISSUANCE OF MONEY FAVORED BY BORAH

Would Put Wealth Back on Proper Basis, He Tells Idaho Audience.

Shelley, Idaho, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, told an audience at a "Potato Day" celebration here today that the Government would be justified in issuing $5,000,000,000 additional currency.

"I don't care what they call it, I am for money," he said. "They can call it inflation; I call it common sense.

"That's something that neither one of the candidates for President in the present campaign will dare mention. They will mention it before the depression is over."

With money in hiding and credit withdrawn, Senator Borah said, the farmer can not market his crop. He declared the issuance of more money was not inflation, but "reflation," which he described as putting the wealth back on a proper basis.

Saying the American farmer is under a load of 25 to 30 billion dollars debt, the senator declared the "country never can come back until the farmer is out of debt and he never can get out of debt under present conditions."

He urged that finance companies, insurance companies and banks be brought into agreement to refinance farm mortgages.

Attacks Land Banks.

Admitting this is a "difficult problem," he said the "United States Government has something to do with the Federal Land Bank system."

"Has there been any liberalization in the Federal Land Bank system? I have not been able to notice it. Federal Land Banks are not only foreclosing but taking every form of security they can get. There ought not to be a single foreclosure so long as the farmer is honest, until the Government devises some method of raising the farmer out of his present difficulties."

Saying "most of the people who write editorials east of the Alleghany Mountains know just about as much on the money question as some one who lives in Europe," Borah stated his views on the matter were not popular in the East.

He declared "there is no one cure for the depression but that many things will contribute to it."

Still Opposed to Bonus.

"I have been and still am opposed to what they call the bonus," he went on. "Speaking for myself and with entire respect for the brave boys who went to the front, I am opposed to payment of the $2,500,000,000 bonus as long as the United States Treasury is anywhere in its present condition."

He warned if there is no reduction in taxes, "there will be no real prosperity for decades to come."

With 75 per cent of the gold held by the United States and France, Senator Borah said, other nations were powerless to buy American goods because of this situation and because of demonetization of silver, which he termed the "primary money of over half the world."

NORRIS' JUDGESHIP CHARGE DENIED BY SECRETARY DOAK

was made,' but then with an adroit play of language he states that I did suddenly flash 'upon the scene a life-tenure upon the Federal judiciary.' There was no attempt by the senator to explain what Mr. Richberg could give in return for a judicial appointment but, of course, this is a mere trifle which would not handicap Senator Norris. * * *

Says Facts Not Learned.

"Had Senator Norris had any desire to learn the real facts in this case he could have done so, but he had no such desire. His desire was to utter libels in an effort at character assassination. And the Democratic national committee became a party to this libel by becoming sponsor for his speech on the radio and widely circulating copies of it to the newspapers of the country.

"This speech at Cleveland, Ohio, last night is not the first time that Senator Norris has engaged in the reprehensible practice of attempted character assassination. Nor in the past have his efforts been entirely confined to public officials or even to men."

Telegram Sent by Doak.

Earlier in the day Doak sent a telegram to Richberg at his Chicago headquarters saying: "You are fully aware that my purpose in bringing you and opponents of the anti-injunction legislation together was to ascertain whether there was a common ground of agreement so that the enactment of this desirable legislation might be expedited in Congress."

The message added:

"Senator Norris also stated that I represented to you that I had invited you to Washington at the suggestion of the President of the United States. You know that I made no such representation to you and the fact is that the President knew nothing of these conferences which were initiated by me on my own motion."

Norris Renews Attack.

Saginaw, Mich., Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, renewed his attacks on the Republican national administration this afternoon at a barbecue attended by 12,000 persons on a farm near here, which Representative Michael J. Hart (Democrat), is coowner.

He reiterated his charge that Secretary of Labor Doak and President Hoover sponsored the entire opposition to the anti-injunction bill passed by Congress "after four years of the sternest opposition."

Of Secretary Doak's denial of the charge that he had suggested a Federal judgeship for Donald E. Richberg, railroad labor attorney, during discussion of a compromise on the bill, he said:

"I happen to know Secretary Doak and I also happen to know Donald Richberg and between them there is no question but that Donald Richberg is telling the truth. Even if I did not know Donald Richberg and I did know Secretary Doak, then I would still believe Richberg."

LIBBY HOLMAN ASKS 'VINDICATION' TRIAL

Seeking Full Exoneration; Prosecutor Will Delay Giving Decision.

Winston-Salem, N. C., Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Complete exoneration of blame in the fatal shooting of Smith Reynolds, tobacco heir, was asked by his accused widow, the former Broadway torch singer, Libby Holman, through her attorney today, as the latter awaited Solicitor Carlisle Higgins' reaction to the Reynolds family's suggestion that murder charges be dropped.

Benet Polikoff, the attorney, quoted the black-haired defendant as saying she wanted the cloud over her created by her indictment, along with Albert Walker, Winston-Salem youth, "lifted permanently."

Declining to reveal the whereabouts of Mrs. Reynolds, Polikoff said he had talked with her by telephone after a letter had been made public in which W. N. Reynolds, uncle and coguardian of Smith, had written Higgins that the family would be "quite happy" if the cases were dropped.

Higgins said he had been too busy with his court duties at East Jefferson, seat of Ashe County, where he is holding court, to give the suggestion of Mr. Reynolds serious consideration as yet. He indicated it would probably be some time before he would make an announcement of his decision.

Polikoff said Mrs. Renolds wanted the case definitely settled. He explained to her, he said, that if Solicitor Higgins should decide to nol pros the charge, it could be revived at any time in the future.

Bucharest, Roumania, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Julius Maniu, leader of the National Peasant party, succeeded tonight in forming a Roumanian cabinet to replace the government of his close friend and political disciple, Alexander Vaida-Voevod.

'He Can Not Be Beaten,' Wilbur Says of Hoover

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Interior Secretary Wilbur said today two transcontinental trips in the last two months convinced him President Hoover had gained ground in his campaign so steadily that "he can not be beaten."

The California educator in an interview said he expected his State to support President Hoover and was willing to concede only Southern States to Gov. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee.

COMMONS DEBATES UNEMPLOYED POLICY

Abolition of "Means Test" Demanded by Lansbury in Brisk Argument.

London, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Less than 24 hours after 10,000 jobless men and women had rioted across the Thames from Parliament Square, the House of Commons engaged in sharp debate tonight over the government's policy of handling the unemployed.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, taking note of the disturbance across the river, cleared the way for the debate early today and it was opened by George Lansbury, Labor leader.

"I demand that the damnable 'means test' be abolished," Mr. Lansbury said, "and every man be given a chance of decent existence."

[Before an unemployed person can receive unemployment insurance, he must show the government proof that he has not the means to subsist normally.]

Mr. Lanabury was supported by George Buchanan, Laborite, who declared future demonstrations by unemployed would "wreck the existing social system, or itself be wrecked in the attempt," unless concessions were made.

Taking up the government's case promptly, Sir John Gilmour, the home secretary, charged that there was a material connection between Moscow and the "National Unemployed Workers movement," which he said formed the nucleus of last night's street fighting.

"It was the same with Mr. Hoover," he continued. "When he was elected he expected to organize the machinery of prosperity. But the sudden turn of events laid upon his shoulders the most terrible depression the world has ever known."

Retired Federal Worker, 87, Was Capital Resident for 70 Years.

Theodore F. Sargent, an outstanding Presbyterian leader during his 70 years of residence in Washington, died Tuesday night at his home at 322 E street northeast. Mr. Sargent was 87 years old.

He was born in New Philadelphia, Pa., and came to Washington at the age of 17 years. He served in the Patent Office, the Agriculture Department, and in 1863 became an employe of the Pension Bureau. In 1920 he was retired after 57 years of Federal service.

In 1973 Mr. Sargent became a member of the historic old First Presbyterian Church. In 1888 he was ordained an elder, to which office he was elected continuously for 42 years. Later he was an elder of the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church. He was sent as commissioner to the general assembly of the church several times, his last appointment being in May of 1930 to the assembly at Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mr. Sargent was the moving spirit in the starting of new Sunday schools and missions. He opened the first cottage prayer meeting at Chevy Chase with a Sabbath school in the postoffice. This developed into the present Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church. He also opened the first religious service at Cottage City which since developed into St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Sargent married Miss Sarah Whittlesey in September of 1890. Three children were born to the couple, Theodore F., jr., who died in infancy, and Virginia W. and Thomas W. Sargent, who survive.

Funeral services will be held at the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church at 2:30 p. m. Friday after a brief service at his home at 11 a. m. Interment will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

NEW MEXICO G.O.P. BLOC FOR ROOSEVELT

Progressive Party Shifts Its Support; Followers of Senator Cutting.

Santa Fe, N. Mex., Oct. 19 (A.P.).—The Progressive party, formed as an aftermath of the recent Republican State convention by followers of United States Senator Bronson M. Cutting, has withdrawn its ticket from the field in New Mexico, and its members will support the Democratic party, Maurice Miera, State chairman, said tonight.

The ticket headed by Prager Miller, of Roswell, as candidate for governor was formed after a split in the Republican convention at Albuquerque last month. At that time Senator Cutting resigned as Republican national committeeman from New Mexico in protest against what he termed the "rule of the few within the party."

Senator Cutting declined to comment on Miera's announcement.

The statement said leaders of the party had deemed it wise to join forces with the Democrats "as the most effective way to bring about the repudiation by the people of the methods employed by the Old Guard leaders at the Republican State convention."

The announcement of the withdrawal of the party's ticket came close on the heels of a fusion here Tuesday between Progressives and Democrats.

A separate resolution was adopted covering the classification issue, authorizing appointment of a special standing committee to recommend plans for improving classification principles and procedure.

The resolution urged that the personnel classification section of the Civil Service Commission make "an immediate review of the allocation of field positions and be empowered and directed to change allocations without reference to the department having jurisdiction over the field employes, with provision that the employes affected shall have the right to appeal his reallocation."

The legislative program urged strengthened of classification already embodied in legislation, and opposed any violation of the principle of job classification.

Separate resolutions, advocating the five-day week, disapproving consolidation of the United States Employes Compensation Commission with the Civil Service Commission, urging that temporary workers get the same sick leave as permanent employes, and demanding repeal of obnoxious economy law provisions previously covered in a blanket resolution, were adopted by the convention.

A delegation, headed by President David R. Glass, yesterday visited Arlington and Mount Vernon, placing wreaths on the tombs of the unknown dead and George Washington.

Maschke Cleared On Theft Charge

Three Judges Also Acquit Officials and Business Men in Ohio.

Cleveland, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Maurice Maschke, veteran Republican chieftain of Cuyahoga County and former Republican national committeeman, was acquitted of charges of having participated in alleged embezzlement of $177,273 from the county treasury.

Three judges who sat en banc in the trial after efforts to obtain a jury were abandoned concurred in the decision, which freed the political leader of the first charge ever made against his personal integrity. In a twelve-page written opinion, the court held that since the embezzlement was alleged to have taken place in 1928, the three-year statute of limitations had expired.

Acquitted with Maschke were his close friends, Attorney Henry A. Beckerman, Councilman Herman H. Pinkle, until recently Republican "whip" in the city council; Alex Bernstein, former chief deputy treasurer, and Charles Bernstein, real estate operator and half-brother of Alex.

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by F. C. Yohn . . . inspired by that horror-filled dawn when the bloodthirsty savages fell on Ethan Allan's gallant "Green Mountain Boys" of Fort Ticonderoga fame. "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"
That package of mild Luckies

BUDGET AND BONUS.

Gov. Roosevelt's speech at Pittsburgh last night was for the most part an indictment of the Hoover administration. The address was intended to demonstrate that the depression is the result of mismanagement, concealment of facts, indecision, and wrong action in dealing with Federal finances. Gov. Roosevelt laid the strongest possible emphasis upon the necessity for balancing the budget.

Inasmuch as the payment of the soldiers' bonus would make it impossible to balance the budget, and inasmuch as wide notice had been given that Gov. Roosevelt would deal decisively with the bonus question in his Pittsburgh speech, it seems probable that disappointment will be expressed over his cautious and almost noncommittal expression on that subject. He spoke of former President Coolidge's reference to the Democratic candidate's silence on the bonus question, and answered it by saying that he had made his position plain last April. Gov. Roosevelt then reiterated what he said last April:

> I do not see how, as a matter of practical business sense, a government running behind $2,000,000,000 annually can consider the anticipation of bonus payment until it has a balanced budget, not only on paper but with a surplus of cash in the Treasury.

This is very good, so far as it goes, but it is not a promise to veto the bonus. It is not likely to convince the country that Gov. Roosevelt stands shoulder to shoulder with President Roosevelt in a determination to keep the Government solvent, even if the veterans must be denied the bonus. The country knows that Mr. Hoover will veto the bonus bill. It has no such assurance from Gov. Roosevelt.

In opposing the bonus President Hoover is supported by the great majority of Republicans in Congress. If Gov. Roosevelt should become President and oppose the bonus he would become engaged in a death-grapple with the great majority of his party in Congress. This situation seems to require from Gov. Roosevelt the strongest possible assurance to the country that he will not yield to pressure from his party on this vital question.

Whatever the result of the election next month, the bonus bill will be pressed at the next session. The Democratic party in the House is committed to the bonus. That party forced the bonus bill through the House, without regard to balancing the budget. If the Senate had not killed the bill President Hoover stood ready to veto it. So far as House Democrats could do so, they voted to make it impossible to balance the budget. All that Gov. Roosevelt said last night in favor of balancing the budget is an indictment of his party in the House. There is every reason to apprehend that House Democrats will again pass the bonus bill.

Upon the Senate and the President the country is dependent for the solvency of the Treasury. The House stands on record as ready to destroy the credit of the Government by granting a bonus payment of $2,400,000,000. If the bonus raid should be blocked at the forthcoming session a fresh assault will be made in the next Congress; and then the welfare of the Nation may depend upon the veto of the President.

Gov. Roosevelt's insistence upon balancing the budget is a reiteration of the same position by President Hoover. Their parties as represented in the House are in disagreement. The Democratic party in the House stands for unbalancing the budget by granting the bonus. Against that record and that menace Gov. Roosevelt should not hesitate to declare that if elected he will veto the bonus bill.

CONSERVATIVE VS. RADICAL.

The most important result of the 1932 election may be a realignment of the two major parties. The left wing of the Republican party seems to have definitely split away. In the Democratic ranks the breach between conservatives and radicals is not so apparent at present, but if the Democrats should be victorious in November it could not remain concealed for any length of time.

Senators Norris and La Follette have definitely taken themselves out of the Republican party. Senator Norris is on the stump for Gov. Roosevelt, and Senator La Follette has announced his allegiance to the Democratic candidates in both the national and State contests in Wisconsin. The La Follette clique is compelled to join forces with the Democrats or pass out of the picture in Wisconsin.

At present there is a disposition on the part of the Democratic party to absorb these radicals. Gov. Roosevelt has welcomed them into the fold, one and all. It is plain from the remarks of both Senators Norris and La Follette that they regard Gov. Roosevelt as radical rather than conservative. This very fact suggests a split in the Democratic party, if it comes into power. If the so-called Progressives secure control of that party, many of the old line of Democrats will be forced into retirement or into the Republican ranks.

It is no more consistent to have Senator Robinson and Huey Long in the same party than it is to have President Hoover and Senator La Follette under the same banner. How could such men as Owen D. Young, Newton D. Baker and Bernard Baruch continue allegiance to a party that takes its cue from radicals? It should be clear to Democratic leaders that they can not extend the hand of friendship to ex-Republican radicals without driving away from their own party millions of conservative voters.

If Gov. Roosevelt and Speaker Garner should win, the clash between radicals and conservatives within the Democratic party would certainly come to a head. Present indications are that the radicals would win, and that the two parties would in the future divide more nearly along the line of conservatism versus radicalism.

AN IMPRACTICAL PLAN.

Senator Bingham's scheme to raise funds for the unemployed by charging one cent per minute for cars parked in the business district is not impressive. To hire enough men to watch each car, keep track of the length of time parked and collect the fee might cost more than could be collected. The number of men required to do such a job might cause more congestion than could be relieved by driving motorists away from the business districts.

Motorists would not, of course, pay 60c an hour for the privilege of parking. It would be cheaper to go to Baltimore to do their Christmas shopping. If Senator Bingham's scheme could be strictly enforced, it would merely result in a deserted business district, or else add to the number of cruising taxicabs.

Furthermore, there is no reason why motorists should be called upon to support the unemployed. That burden rests upon the community as a whole and not upon any one class.

BRITISH-SOVIET TRADE.

Great Britain has given notice that her commercial treaty with Soviet Russia will terminate at the end of six months. Trade between the two countries has never been satisfactory. Action of this kind has been anticipated ever since the election last year, which returned the Conservative party to power by an overwhelming majority. But the national government has been patient, awaiting just such an opportunity as is presented by the ratification of the Ottawa tariff agreements.

The entire program of reciprocal agreements entered into by Great Britain and the dominion governments was predicated upon restrictions against Soviet dumping in the British market. Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa knew that any concession granted to them in the British market would be worthless unless the products of forced labor in Russia were barred. The British delegates had to choose between the maintenance of Soviet trade on the present scale and extension of trade within the commonwealth.

Great Britain is in a better position to trade with the Soviet than any other nation. The destitute Russian people need manufactured goods which British mills can supply. Britain needs raw materials that could be produced in abundance in the Soviet. Yet the trade agreement which Premier Ramsay MacDonald negotiated with the communist regime has been a lop-sided affair. British manufacturers were promised extensive orders, but after the agreement was concluded the Soviet went elsewhere to buy most of its machinery and other essential imports, while dumping its surplus raw materials on the British market.

At first glance it might appear to be advantageous for Great Britain to obtain raw materials from the Soviet at demoralized prices. But the British discovered that they were losing the dominion markets for their manufactures and were not exporting much to Russia. It is quite natural, therefore, that Britain should cut off the dumping of Soviet commodities and draw on the dominions for raw materials in exchange for finished goods.

This decision on the part of Great Britain is a blow to the propagandists who are trying to force the United States into diplomatic and commercial relations with the Soviet. If Britain finds trade with the Soviet unsatisfactory, there is not the remotest possibility that the United States could profit from such trade. This country can buy almost nothing of commercial importance from the Soviet without exposing American industries and workingmen to the competition of a government monopoly which intimidates its labor and applies penal sanctions whenever it considers them necessary.

No nation can trade freely with the Soviet without demoralizing its own economic system. At present Germany is engaged in furnishing vast stores of industrial machinery to Russia, because Germany is forced to export an abnormal volume of goods to meet her international obligations. Now that the British outlet for Soviet raw materials has been curtailed, Germany may become the victim of Soviet dumping.

More intensive Soviet propaganda may also be expected in this country. The communist juggernaut must now have a new outlet for its slave-made products, and Moscow officials have not yet given up belief that the American people are gullible.

THE SUGAR TARIFF.

Although he has denounced the Republican tariff act of 1930, Gov. Roosevelt has not specified any one rate that he considers too high. The nearest approach the governor has made to expressing his attitude on a specific rate may be found in his letter to a Cuban firm that is seeking a reduction in the sugar duty. Now even that clue has been vitiated by Gov. Roosevelt's claim that he did not know the implication of the letter which went out over his name.

La Casa Grande Company of Cuba wrote a letter congratulating Gov. Roosevelt upon his nomination, and attributing to him the opinion that the sugar tariff is exorbitant and should be reduced to 20 per cent ad valorem. At present prices that would be a reduction of 80 per cent. It would mean the ruin of the American sugar beet industry.

In Gov. Roosevelt's reply he said:

> It gives me a great deal of pleasure that my political ideals are understood and appreciated by my friends in neighboring countries.

Senator Smoot, who is campaigning for re-election in Utah, commented upon this letter and denounced Gov. Roosevelt as one who would destroy the sugar beet industry. No stronger criticism could have been applied to the Democratic candidate in the Beehive State. Western farmers are harvesting a good beet crop this year. This is about the only crop from which they hope to reap any profits. With sugar selling in Cuba for 77 cents per hundred pounds, as compared with about $3 in the United States, it is not difficult to imagine the blight which Gov. Roosevelt's letter spread over the Democratic cause in the Intermountain West.

Democrats began to plead frantically with Gov. Roosevelt for an explanation. He telegraphed to Fred Cummings, Democratic candidate for Congress from a sugar beet district of Colorado, to the effect that he did not see the original letter and that the reply which he signed was prepared by the Democratic headquarters in New York.

The sugar duty is the most controversial item in the tariff act. It has been bitterly denounced by the Democratic party on the ground that it increases the cost of living in this country for the benefit of small industries in the West and South.

The sugar beet region is anxiously awaiting word from Gov. Roosevelt that he does not favor a reduction in the sugar duty.

Senators Walsh and Coolidge, of Massachusetts, are against the Smoot-Hawley tariff only in a Democratic sense. When their State's industries are threatened they wire to the Treasury, demanding Smoot-Hawley tariff protection.

THE BOBCAT RACKET

From the New York Sun.

Vermont seems to be infertile ground for rackets. So much indignation has been aroused in the State over recent revelations concerning the fraudulent collection of bounty on bobcat pelts that at the next session of the Legislature the bounty law may be repealed. At present the State pays $10 to every citizen who presents the skin of a bobcat at the office of the town clerk of his own town and makes under oath the declaration required by law. The bounty act has been popular, for almost every Vermonter is an occasional hunter; his favorite game is the ruffed grouse, known all through the North country as the partridge. Bobcats slaughter partridges in great numbers.

A vulnerable feature of the law is that after a man has killed a bobcat and has collected his bounty he is permitted to take the pelt away with him. The town clerk punches holes in the bobcat's ears, but the art of mending these punctures has been developed to a high degree. Even in cases where the ears have been cut off new ears have been known to appear. The fact that the racketeers have been able to deceive sharp-eyed Vermont town clerks, many of whom probably were hunters themselves, is sufficient proof of their skill.

A man suspected of practicing these tricks was captured recently and the hand of the law descended heavily on him. Although a resident of Plymouth, he was accused of having collected $20 on two bobcat pelts from the town clerk of Londonderry, a woman, after swearing that he was a resident of Londonderry. He was indicted for perjury and convicted by a jury in the Windham County Court at Newfane. Judge John S. Buttles sentenced him to serve not less than two and a half nor more than four years at hard labor in the State prison and to pay a fine of $100. He appealed and was released on $2,500 bail.

The severity of this sentence is an index of the feeling in Vermont against the bobcat racket and against frauds and rackets in general. It is a healthful feeling, even though to outsiders it may seem to concern itself in this case with a matter of minor importance. If it were more widespread there would be no Capone problems. Vermont would have had Scarface Al behind the bars before he acquired his first silk shirt.

POST HASTE.

"La Follette Supports Roosevelt." Call the roll, the birds of a feather have all flocked.

Democratic officeholders participating in the campaign are very wroth over Republican officeholders participating in the campaign.

Advocates of a trade pact with Russia should note that one, somewhat battered, can be picked up for nothing on the British dump.

If Gov. Roosevelt can recognize the farm program of his Topeka speech since it has been interpreted by a director of the National Progressive League it will be a testimonial to the linguistic abilities of the professors who accompany him.

The next thing we know the intelligent frothers will be demanding the adoption in this country of the secret ballot, so that managers of great corporations can not "intimidate" and "coerce" their employes.

Just as the free trade professors protest the tariff protection the Customs Bureau discloses unprecedented complaints of dumping. What part of the American market would be left for United States producers if there had been no "prohibitive" tariff walls?

The police have captured the fire bug who was impelled to acts of arson by the full moon. Now they can devote themselves to evil acts of those full of moonshine.

Standard Statistics replies from 530 representative American business concerns report to the effect that the crisis of the depression and the low point of business were passed last summer, but for a year only gradual improvement is to be expected. What can be feared from a reversal of present policies?

The rumor is forwarded by Althea that admirers of Gov. Pinchot propose changing the nickname of Pennsylvania from the "Keystone" to the "Touchstone" State.

Why Risk Contact With a Frenzied Thief If the Property Isn't Yours?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

AMERICA'S wars are not made by statesmen alone, but rather by public imagination and popular clamor.

Yet the indiscretion of statesmen may so irritate the people of another land as to cause unfriendly demonstrations, and these in turn may arouse our people to a frenzy of patriotism that will force the statesmen to make war.

Something of that kind is happening now, and once more our youth will be sent to the slaughter pen if our arrogant virtue persists in policing the world.

This time the victim is China and the pillaging Hun is little Japan. This time the weak must be protected from the strong because America's markets are threatened.

Observe the material of which war is made.

The Japanese, great in number but poor in resources, seized from China the vast territory of Manchuria—greater in extent and richer in resources than our Middle West.

Their excuse was their need. Needing space for growth and resources for war, they coolly stole a neighbor's land in violation of treaties to which America is a party. Other excuses don't matter.

America made many protests. Officially the protests are based on the violation of treaties; actually they are inspired by the fact that Chinese territory seized by Japan will no longer afford a market for American goods.

These protests offended Japan. The Japanese are proud and sensitive—which means that they resent being an inferior race and are keenly aware of their own dishonor.

A sense of guilt makes them arrogant, touchy, suspicious, quarrelsome. Determined at any cost to keep what they have stolen, they continually protest their innocence of wrong and dare the world to interfere.

They are ripe for war. They see spies everywhere. Their papers denounce America daily. Their nerves are on edge. They are like a thief who sees a menace in every shadow and keeps his finger on the trigger.

Americans are scarcely aware of the danger, for their minds are on other things. But one official blunder might plunge us into war over night.

There is no need of war. The destiny of nations is not settled in a day. The menace of Japan can safely be left to China and Russia. These two will do what is necessary when the time comes.

If Americans would save their sons and their purses, they must speak softly. The best way to deal with an infuriated neighbor is to let him alone until he cools off.

The American Dollar.
Portland Press-Herald.

In measuring the achievements of President Hoover it should not be forgotten that while other nations have suffered a shrinkage in their currency, the American dollar remains today as sound as it ever was and unshaken by the terrific economic storm which has passed over the world.

The British pound sterling, the French franc, the German mark, the Italian lira and the Canadian dollar have shrunk and the effect has been disastrous. But the value of the American dollar remains unimpaired.

This has been largely due to the sound financial policy which President Hoover has pursued throughout his administration. Contrasted with what the Democrats in control of the House tried to do under Speaker Garner's leadership the record is an impressive one.

Competition Not the Solution.
Aberdeen (S. Dak.) American.

Gov. Roosevelt's cure for the depression here and throughout the world, he believes, lies in a reduction of the present tariff. And the strange part of it all is that the very people who would be hardest hit if the tariff were eliminated—the farmers—are falling for this political ballyhoo. Such a stupid blunder as to destroy the present protection would make return to normalcy impossible, since we would then be forced to compete with the entire world in our own markets.

Examine the Issues—Vote!
Cincinnati Enquirer.

Doubtless there are many voters who have not yet decided for whom they will cast their ballots in national and State and local contests in November. They realize that this year especially the elections are of tremendous importance. As Newton Baker said the other day in Cincinnati, "the fate of the Nation" for four years is to be determined on November 8.

It is the task of the citizen not only to inform himself of the platforms of the parties and the views of individual candidates, but also to have clear in his own mind just what he expects of the men he votes for. The citizen must have his own philosophy of Government before he can vote with discrimination and effectiveness.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

"Pedestrian Masses" Deprived of Rights by Motorists Who Break Parking Rules.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One signing himself "An American Citizen" writes to complain that the local police are too diligent about enforcing automobile parking restrictions and too lax about tracking down criminals. His attitude is quite typical of the average motorist.

Your writer has lived in Washington for the past two years and has yet to suffer the slightest inconvenience from the so-called "crime wave." But motorists who insist upon parking automobiles any old place are about as obnoxious people as may be found in everyday life. Among their specialities seem to be parking close to street corners so as to block the pedestrian crosswalks, parking in front of the entrances to Government buildings, and parking so as to leave no space at all around street car stop signs.

Motorists comprise as a rule about 20 per cent of the total population. Here in Washington the percentage is somewhat higher, no doubt. But each member of this privileged class seems to think that it is his or her inalienable right to usurp fifty or sixty square feet of the public streets for as many hours per day as they see fit. Let us have more stringent enforcement of the parking restrictions and recognition of the rights of the pedestrian masses as against class privilege.

Objects to Pensioning Spendthrifts Who Did Not Provide for Their Old Age.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What would our forefathers say to all this talk of old-age pensions for people who never saved anything for their old age? Today, when some of us, under ordinary conditions, might expect to enjoy the fruits of our labor we find that because a certain element have not worked and have not saved when they could as well as we, we are called upon to give or have it taken by taxes.

I overheard two men talking—one saying he wished he had only a small part of the money that had slipped through his fingers—if he had only bought a small farm he now would be able to care for himself. And that is the story. You can not eat your cake and have it, too.

Please tell us who is going to economize or try to take care of the future if at 60 or even younger the Government will assume the responsibility?

The politicians who advocate old-age pensions to spendthrifts are striking a direct blow at the American people. There are always some who will work and save and there always will be others who will not. No Government will survive which is so unjust and so unfair as to make some work to provide for those who shirk.

Pennsylvanian Says Good Times Are Returning—Opposes Experiments. Says Hoover Will Carry State.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: No President was ever more heckled or harassed by a Congress than Mr. Hoover by the last past Congress, and the man who most impeded President Hoover's efforts to lighten the country's economic burden was none other than Speaker Garner—the man who is now a handicap on the Democratic Roosevelt presidential ticket.

Presidetn Hoover's measures for relief show careful, earnest, honest and intelligent thought and research. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, in spite of criticism and enmity just opened against it, is functioning and bringing relief to threatened banks that radiate to every depositor and stockholder, great and small. Business is strengthening and gaining confidence. The work of rehabilitation is well on the way. This is a fact; evidence can support it from hundreds of towns and small cities.

The country is to be congratulated that President Hoover was willing to keep the leadership, stand for reelection in the face of intense adverse criticism. At this crisis of America's living welfare we can not afford to indulge in experiments. They may mean disaster. It is absolutely frightening to contemplate the radical changes that are proposed. Only the substantial, level-headed business man, who knows responsibility, can hold the anchor fast.

Pennsylvania is the rock-ribbed Republican stronghold. President Hoover's majority will be big and plenty. He gains friends every hour.

Thinks Employment of Women in Place of Men Has Caused Depression.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your article on women gainfully employed is timely and informing. It has always been my thought that when our men returned from the war they should have been reinstated to their former positions and the women fired.

At one time it was a disgrace for a woman to work among men and such employment should not be permitted now. Because it is allowed now, it is the real and only reason for the depression. If all women not employed before the war were dismissed from office and men substituted, there would be no unemployment.

If some congressmen had the "grit" to push such a bill through Congress, happiness and prosperity would again be in evidence.

JAPANESE MENACE IS CITED BY DR. SZE

Uncontrolled Military Called Peril to World at Parley at W. and M.

Williamsburg, Va., Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Dr. Sao Ke-Alfred Sze, Chinese diplomat, in an address here tonight asserted the opinion that uncontrollable governmental situations in Japan are "much more dangerous to neighboring countries and the world at large" than those in China.

His discussion of Far Eastern problems dealt at length with issues in the Sino-Japanese controversy in the closing session of the Institute of International Affairs at the College of William and Mary.

He said he made his observations in view of the "well-known freedom of the Japanese army and navy from control by the civil government—a freedom made possible by the Japanese constitution itself."

"It is proper that I should observe that a situation much more dangerous to neighboring countries and the world at large exists when a powerful state is not able to control, through its civil government, the foreign policies and actions of its own military forces, than when a certain degree of governmental weakness and disorder is exhibited within a state."

The sessions of the closing day were opened with a discussion of Pan-American problems. At the morning conference Dr. L. W. Rowe, director general of the Pan-American Union, urged adherence to a Pan-American system based on "positive, constructive principles," which he summarized as "acceptance of the principle of nonaggression," "no future territorial acquisition to be obtained by means of war or under the menace of war" and "judicial settlement of international disputes."

American economic relations with Mexico were discussed by Ernest M. Patterson, of the University of Pennsylvania.

John Donaldson, of George Washington University, spoke on the United States economic relations with Pan-American countries.

Road Bids Opened In Montgomery

A low bid of $13,881 has been received from the G. & L. Construction Co., of Baltimore, for the building of 1.02 miles of macadam road from Huntt's corner to Fort Foote. The contract probably will be awarded in a few days.

The bids were asked by the State Roads Commission, which had stated earlier that this project, as well as three others in the county, had been disapproved by the Federal Government. The county commissioners had recommended that four roads be built with the county's share of the Federal loan to Maryland. Others recommended were one mile of the Kolbe's corner road, the old Colesville road, and the Old Powder Factory road.

Approval of the Huntt's corner road led partisans of the other routes to hope that their projects might also be built. The roads were originally disapproved because they did not conform to Federal requirements, but it is believed that the commission's engineers may be able to make the other three routes conform as they did the Huntt's corner project.

Herbert Hoover, Jr., And Wife Depart For New York.

MR. AND MRS. HERBERT HOOVER, Jr., who have been visiting President and Mrs. Hoover, left yesterday for New York. Mrs. Hoover accompanied her son and daughter-in-law to the train.

Phone Fairfax 166.

The Fairfax County board of supervisors, meeting yesterday in the board room of the courthouse at Fairfax, Va., adopted a resolution governing the applications for permits to establish and operate commercial hog farms and public dance halls in the county. Heretofore the supervisors visited all such places prior to granting permits, but because of the large number of applications scattered throughout the county the personal inspection has been found to be impractical.

Hereafter all applications must be accompanied by sworn affidavit of applicant, showing the total number of property owners within the prescribed zone of the establishment and by a plat definitely locating the premises, for which a permit is applied, and showing the location of all property within the zone.

The board voted to advertise for the redemption of 275 road bonds issued in 1912 for the building of the Lee highway in Falls Church District. These bonds, having a value of $1,000 each, will mature on December 15.

Three permits for three years each were issued to operate public dance halls at Chimney Villa, near Merrifield; Bull Run Hall, on the Manassas road, and Pohick Hall, on the Washington-Richmond highway, at Pohick, after the operators of the dance halls gave a sworn statement that the county ordinance had been fully complied with.

Cup Is Presented For Best Lawns

Laurel Club Delegation Is Given Award by Dr. Havenner.

A silver cup, won by Laurel, Md., and awarded for the best lawns and plantings in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties by the District George Washington Bicentennial Commission, yesterday was presented to Mrs. George E. Albee, chairman of the Laurel Garden Club, and a delegation from its membership, by Dr. George C. Havenner, chairman of the commission, in the Bicentennial offices here.

Prizes in the garden contest also were presented to winners at Glenndale, Md., yesterday at a meeting in St. George's Parish House. The silver cup offered by the Real Estate Mortgage & Guaranty Corporation of Washington was accepted on behalf of the community by Thomas D. Keim. The trophy was given for the general landscape beauty of Glenndale.

Mrs. O. G. Carlson, of Glenndale, was presented a medal given by the National Bicentennial Commission for the best individual garden in the Maryland community.

2 Hyattsville Vagrants Sentenced to 4 Months

Four persons were convicted yesterday in Hyattsville Police Court of liquor violations and fined $50 each, while two vagrants drew sentences of four months in the House of Correction.

The liquor transgressors were Ruth Diggs, of Highland Park; Henry Howard, of Hyattsville; Henry Moore, of Duuckettsville, and Arvon J. Patterson, of 2902 Vista street northeast. The jail sentences were given to Russell Slater and Henry Tappscott, who were charged with vagrancy and being drunk and disorderly.

Man Held, Wife Free in Rum Case.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Waters, of Marbury, Md., were arraigned before United States Commissioner J. Frank Parran at Marlboro yesterday on charges of transporting six cases of whisky near Piscataway. The man was held in bond of $500, but his wife was released when Parran decided she was not responsible for the alleged liquor.

JUDGE PETER IS DUE TO QUIT POST TODAY

Lyddane, Edward Peter and Oxley Are Mentioned for State's Attorney.

Judge Robert B. Peter is expected formally to present his resignation as judge of the Montgomery County Circuit Court to Gov. Albert C. Ritchie today. He informed the governor a week ago that he intended such a step.

Upon the reception of the judge's resignation, the governor is expected to appoint Judge Charles W. Woodward, now sitting in the county police court, to the higher bench. Gov. Ritchie announced Sunday night he would appoint Judge Woodward.

The appointment of Judge Woodward leaves vacant the police court post, which will be filled by the governor. State's Attorney Stedman Prescott is expected to receive this appointment.

Appointment of a successor to the State's attorney is made by the judge of the circuit court, in accordance with the State constitution.

Outstanding possibilities for the post of State's attorney are Kenneth Lyddane and Edward C. Peter, both Rockville attorneys and well known, while John Oxley, also a Rockville attorney, also has been mentioned.

Both Mr. Peter and Mr. Oxley yesterday said they had not made overtures for the position. They said they know of no political deal by which Progressive Democratic support of the regular Democratic organization would be effected by appointment of either as State's attorney. They pointed out that the appointment is not a political one, but purely judicial.

"We would both consider it a reflection on the judiciary and ourselves if we were offered the State's attorneyship for political purposes," Mr. Peter said.

CONGESTED SCHOOLS GET MORE TEACHERS

Prince Georges County Acts to Remedy Crowded Conditions.

Additional teachers, to be paid out of the State equalization fund, will be placed in five of the most overcrowded schools in Prince Georges County, Nicholas Orem, superintendent of schools, announced yesterday.

The instructors will be sent to the Maryland Park Junior High School and to the elementary schools at Suitland, Laurel, Hyattsville and Surrattsville. These five schools were the only ones to be approved by the State department of education, although nine requests for additional teachers were sent to the State body. Because the teachers will be paid out of the State equalization fund, without cost to the county, their employment must be approved by the State.

In addition to paying the teachers, the equalization fund will also pay the material costs of operating the extra classrooms. In the Suitland and Hyattsville schools there is an extra room which will be used by the new teacher, while at Maryland Park the additional class will be held in the school library. The auditoriums of the Laurel and Surrattsville schools will be used for the new classes at these schools.

The four requests rejected by the State were turned down because the extra teachers are not urgently needed. All requests for additional high school teachers are being rejected by the State on the grounds that high schools are not so essential as elementary schools.

Prosecution of Firebug Suspect Is Postponed

Because the Government wished to gather more data before going forward with the prosecution of Howard Banks, colored, 26 years old, alleged fire bug, Judge John P. McMahon yesterday in Police Court continued the preliminary hearing of Banks until next Tuesday. In the meantime, he set bond at $10,000.

Banks, who is alleged to have exhibited a weakness for starting fires when the moon was full, was charged with arson. He entered a plea of not guilty. He was arrested last Wednesday after he was seen running from a fire at Twelfth and K streets northwest. The specific charge on which he was arraigned was that of starting a fire at 415 Nineteenth street northwest, August 16.

FREE BIDS.

ALTHOUGH defensive bidding by the opponents very often tends to interrupt the line of communication between you and your partner, it can also very often be used to your advantage in reaching the proper game or part-score contract. The fact that the opponents have made a Defensive bid will very frequently enable you to draw more delicate and precise inferences as to your partner's holdings, when there has been an intervening bid between your Opening bid and your partner's response.

Free bids by the better Contract players are never made with doubtful or shaded holdings. If I, as your partner, open the bidding with one spade, Second Hand bids two hearts, and you now bid two spades, I will know that your hand definitely contains one full Raise for my spade bid, and possibly a little more. If I had opened the bidding with one spade and Second Hand had passed, I would know that you, on a doubtful hand, would strain a point to keep the bidding open for me, and either give me a shaded Raise for my spade bid or respond with a negative notrump. Naturally, I would not take your Raise too seriously, and would take into consideration that you might have a minimum or even a shaded holding—that is, unless you took further action later. But the fact that the opponents have now put in an Overcall, which enables you to pass, since the bidding will come around to me again, allows me to place greater faith in any free Raise or free Takeout that you may choose to insert at this point.

Certain Contract players bid on only one basis—that is, they continually try to overcall the opponents and secure the final declaration for their side. Bidding of this kind is based on a faulty major premise. When I open the bidding and the opponent on my left overcalls, the assumption is that we are the attacking side for the time being and that we hold the balance of power. Therefore, there is absolutely no reason for my partner to give me a shaded Raise merely for the purpose of overcalling the opponents, as he is only giving me false information and is taking the control away from the hand which should have the control—namely, the Opening bidder's. He may force me to carry the bidding too high—his bid may bring the bidding to such a level where I can not show my other suit—or he may stop me from making a Takeout Double, which his hand would be justified in permitting to stand, and thereby securing a large penalty. If I open the bidding and Second Hand passes, I naturally want my partner to strain a point to keep the bidding open for me and he will do so with many doubtful holdings, merely to give me another chance. But these same Responding Hands, which I expect to give me a chance with no intervening bid, are immediately released from the obligation of bidding when Second Hand overcalls. Any bid now made by my partner tells me that he has a fair hand and that his response is not in any way shaded; and to go a little further, I am told by it that if I, the Opening bidder, make a further effort to reach game, my partner will probably cooperate with me.

I am not advocating timid passing by my partner just because there has been an Overcall—there are some hands in which it is necessary for even the Responding Hand to get in his bid at the first opportunity, as the partner of the Overcaller may now jump the bidding to a point where it is too high for me to rebid, and we may miss a game. But, as a general thing, it is very bad practice to sacrifice the opportunity for clearly classifying your hand by making a free bid, which would occur if you started making free bids on mediocre holdings. When your partner has opened the bidding, you are no longer in a defensive position, despite your own comparatively weak holding, and it is no longer necessary to hamper opponents' bidding at the expense of misleading your partner.

I might be so bold as to make the following statement: A Raise from one to two in a major, when there has been an Overcall by the opponents, is somewhere between a single and a double Raise; whereas a Raise from one to two without opponent's bidding might very well be somewhere between a pass and a single Raise.

In short, make your free bids mean something, and in those cases where an opponent's bid gives you a chance to pass it around to your partner, who holds the controlling hand, do so.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"LIBRA."

IF October 20 is your birthday, the the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to 11:15 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 7:30 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:15 a. m. to 9 a. m. and from 4:30 p. m. to 5:45 p. m.

There are no heavenly signs that would make this October 20 other than an ordinary day in affairs both in business and at home. Greater activity will probably be noticed in the late afternoon hours. A feeling of contentment will seem to be apparent in those with whom you come in contact. No unusual events near at hand.

Parents of children born on this October 20 will derive unusual satisfaction and pleasure from them. These children will be affectionate and loving, and their sympathetic natures will tend to bring them close to their parents. They like attention, and this desire to be noticed will prove a motivating force in the doing of their school work. Guard them against undue conceit.

If October 20 is the day of your birth you will probably lead a very normal and routine existence. At times you are inclined to chafe under the collar of routine existence and to feel that you would like to get away from it all and lead a less ordered life. Your interests are very largely, though not entirely, in your work. If you have a hobby, and you should have one, it is probably painting, writing or perhaps music. You are fond of music and should get a great deal of pleasure in playing some instrument. Quite probably your mind has an inventive turn, and in that event you are forever working with some gadget or other which you hope some day to put on the market.

At your work, which is probably connected in some way with figures, banking, accounting, &c., you are unusually industrious. You have great powers of concentration, a keen analytical mind and a driving force within youself that enables you to turn out a great deal of work. You are a pleasant person to work with, cheerful without being offensively so, and never grouchy. You are kind, always willing to lend a hand to a fellow worker, and sometimes too sympathetic. At these times you may find yourself doing double duty and carrying another's burden or duties which have been deftly shifted to your shoulders. You are an amiable and loving friend, a good parent.

Successful people born on October 20:

Marshall Jewell, statesman.
Alexander T. McGill, jurist.
John E. Trowbridge, composer.
Hugh Bolton Jones, artist.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

DIETS FOR PELLAGRA.

SO far as concerns prevention of pellagra, the year 1932 has reached its closed esason. The disease starts making its appearance in the spring and not many new cases develop after July. The cases that begin in the late spring and early summer are the result of prolonged use of an improper diet for six to ten months preceding the outbreak. Therefore what was done and particularly what was eaten during the winter of 1931-'32 is the cause of the pellagra that developed this summer. It is now in order to lay plans for a winter diet that will prevent pellagra during the next summer.

Drs. Wheeler and Sebrell tell us that if any one of the following foods, or group of foods makes up a fair proportion of the diet, pellagra will be prevented: Yeast, the germ of wheat, cereals, and breads made by grinding whole grains and leaving all of the germ in the meal or flour, fresh beef, canned corned beef, liver, canned salmon, canned haddock, tomatoes, turnip greens, canned English peas, milk, buttermilk, evaporated milk and dried milk. (The preventive principle is in the milk rather than in the fat. Therefore for this purpose skim milk and curd are about as serviceable as whole milk, and more serviceable than butter and cream.)

The following foods are good pellagra preventives, but are not to be ranked with those given above: Dried beans and peas, eggs, canned spinach, green cabbage, canned string beans.

Other foods are being tested. The indications are that collards are preventive of pellagra. Mustard greens, turnips, other meats, and sweets are being tested.

The following foods have been proved to have little or no power to prevent pellagra: Cornmeal, wheat flour, rye flour, oatmeal, molasses, cane sirup, sweet potatoes, mature onions, carrots, rutabagas, salt pork, lard, cottonseed oil, butter and gelatin.

If research should prove that the principle in grain is found only in the germ, and that the germ of all grains contains it, the simplest way out is to go back to breaking up the grain with a stone bowl and cooking it while fresh, as the Indians, Mexicans, and others still do; or by grinding it in a crude mill such as a heavy coffee mill.

One wonders why our teachers of cooking have not led the people back to the old methods of growing yeast in the home, and taught them new methods of cooking yeast and making appealing foods rich in it.

If the final report on collards is to the effect that eating this vegetable would prevent pellagra, it would be easy to persuade the people to plant a supply sufficient to carry them through the winter. Turnip greens and perhaps mustard greens will live in the open until early winter.

The medicinal cures for developed pellagra are of no value. One suggested in Egypt, sodium thiosulphite, is still on trial in that country. But the diet cures give good results in all but the late cases.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

PERSONALITY and poise are two rare attributes. The woman in whose description these highly desirable adjectives are used is indeed fortunate. Usually she is lovely to look at. And restful, too.

While we all enjoy the bubbling activity that is so definitely a part of youth, while we all admire the middle-aged woman who is interested in many hobbies, who is energetic and whose vibrant vitality keeps her "on the go," it is a far cry from this active enthusiasm to fidgeting.

Fidgeting is something the well-groomed woman does not do. No matter how busy or popular. Very often fidgeting is due to nervousness, but more often it is caused by a lack of confidence that all is well with one's grooming. Every one knows how physically exhausting it can be to watch a woman tugging at her hair, her gown, adjusting a belt or bow, pulling at her face and so on.

Mirror Instead of Maid.

The beautifully groomed woman usually has about her an aura of self-assurance. All pulling, tugging, arranging and adjusting are done beforehand. A full-length mirror, preferably of the triple type, is the best substitute for a French maid. It will tell you whether stocking seams are straight, shoe heels run down; whether hair is in place and make-up applied properly; whether your hat is on at the right angle; whether brows need grooming.

It is a good plan to look over your underthings and dresses, shoes, stockings, coat, &c., to make sure that slip straps are secure, dresses unwrinkled and immaculate; that gloves are as they should be, and all other accessories right.

Even a small detail such as a slip strap showing, even if it is freshly laundered, detracts from the groomed picture. It is so unnecessary when a piece of tape or ribbon about an inch long and an eighth or quarter of an inch wide can be sewed into every dress at the shoulder to keep such straps in place. Simply sew the tape at one end, then affix one end of a snap fastener or hook and eye to the other end of the tape, and the mate of the fastener to the dress. Then all understraps are slipped into the tape and are always held in place.

Having carefully checked all the details of grooming, forget about them. Leave self-consciousness behind you. Stop fidgeting. When hands are held in your lap they should be in repose, relaxed, not clenched. Your associates will put you down as a restfully lovely and poised personality if you avoid touching hands to face, hair, dress and so on.

Mrs. Jones is as thrilled as a girl over the call. But she is thrifty and wonders what it cost.

ROY D. CHAPIN, Secretary of Commerce, will report on the "State of the Nation" in a special program which will be carried over the WJZ-WBAL network at 10:15 o'clock tonight.

An automobile crash at Sixteenth street and Eighth avenue was heard clearly the other day at the N. B. C. New York studios at Fifth avenue and Fifty-fifth street.

It seems the N. B. C.'s mobile transmitter was cruising around the city, keeping in constant two-way, short-wave communication with engineers at the studios. Suddenly those at the studios heard a terrific crash.

"What's that?" William Burke Miller, director of special events, barked into the microphone.

"Our fender has just been ripped off by a bakery truck," came the nonchalant reply from George Milne, engineer on the truck.

Listeners at the studio then heard a typical after-the-crash conversation, with the driver of the bakery truck giving his name and address to the chauffeur of the company's truck.

THE new president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, Thomas P. Littlepage, will talk for five minutes over Station WRC at 6 o'clock about the forthcoming Industrial Exposition.

Wrestling matches at Griffith Stadium will be described over WOL at 9 o'clock tonight.

Compromise Seen On Dewey Estate

Postponement of Trial Is Announced by Luhring Unexpectedly.

A compromise in the contest over the estate of Mrs. Mildred McLean Dewey, widow of Admiral George Dewey, loomed yesterday in the District Supreme Court when an unexpected postponement of the trial was announced. Justice Oscar R. Luhring granted the delay. The hearing is now scheduled for Monday. If the attorneys for the litigants come to an agreement the contest will be dropped.

Mrs. Dewey's last will disposed of her estate in a manner that brought on an attack upon its validity by her step-son, George Goodwin Dewey, of Chicago, who was not mentioned in the instrument as among the beneficiaries. A nephew, Frederick Bugher, and Edward B. McLean were named as the principal beneficiaries.

The Dewey estate was valued at $875,000, but because of the shrinkage of the value of securities it is now estimated to be worth $500,000. Attorneys Frank J. Hogan and Nelson T. Hartson are supporting the will, while Charles S. Baker and a Chicago firm are acting for Mr. Dewey.

Hunters Kill Game Warden.

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Shot as he approached a group of hunters to examine their licenses today, W. H. Minnick, deputy game warden, died an hour later.

BIG TOPS AND TAN BARK

A few of the features suggested to the pen of the cartoonist by the announcement that "circus week" is to be celebrated with a complete three-ring show on the stage of the Earle Theater, beginning tomorrow.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

IT has been interesting, after a fortnight's discussion of "The Good Earth," to observe from what divergent points of view the Theater Guild's dramatization of the Pearl S. Buck novel was approached by the New York reviewers upon the occasion of the play's Broadway premiere Monday night.

As was to have been expected, when so comprehensive a fiction is reduced to the meager dimensions of three acts and ten scenes, the acting version by Owen and Donald Davis was variously appraised. Strangely enough, however, no greater unanimity seems to have prevailed among the critical fraternity upon the quality of the acting contributed to the piece by Mme. Alla Nazimová, Claude Rains, Henry Travers, Sydney Greenstreet and the others in the cast, which Washington, without a seriously dissenting voice, as I recall it, deemed impressive.

The scholarly Mr. Brooks Atkinson, of the New York Times, is unable to discern a single redeeming virtue in the stage rendition of "The Good Earth." In his view, the Davises were confronted by an impossible task when intrusted with the dramatization of a book which was not a drama and could not be made into one. Also Mr. Atkinson is able to detect no performance among the roster of principals that even vaguely apprehends Mrs. Buck's intention with regard to her characters. In desperation, this disappointed commentator with high satire regrets that he will have to await further the opening of the Theater Guild's season!

That equally erudite student of the drama, Mr. Percy Hammond, of the Herald Tribune, on the other hand, in large measure corroborates everything that was said of the play in Washington; that it is an unsatisfactory approximation of the story for any one familiar with the tremendous scope of the written work, but about as workmanlike and skillful a job of adapting as could be accomplished under the circumstances. The compression of an epochal fiction into the meager dimensions of a domestic triangle drama, like all the rest of us, Mr. Hammond mildly deprecates. Claude Raine, as Wang Lung, he finds as convincing as "a good English actor could be, playing a Chinaman," and Nazimova he applauds, save that he feels she bellowed her lines like a wild beast instead of speaking them like a slave. Mr. Travers, as the father, and Mr. Greenstreet, as the evil uncle, he found in some measure edifying.

And that, mesdames and messieurs, is show business!

When you visit the Rialto Theater this midnight or thereafter, to see the film version of "Once in a Lifetime"—as, of course, you will—you will discover yourself sitting face to face with another superlative audience picture. When, at some inconvenience, I am afraid, to Managing Director Rodney Collier and Manager Reingold Wallach, I sat through the familiar developments of the story in its new form Tuesday midnight, it seemed to me that the screen has gone the stage one better in its treatment of the blistering satire that Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman originally wrote for the boards and not the celluloids.

On the stage, all protestations to the contrary notwithstanding, there was a touch of bitterness in what seemed a vicious attack on the motion picture industry. With the industry poking fun at itself, with the same play, through their own medium, it all becomes good, clean sport, executed in an entirely new and playful spirit.

The original has been rigidly adhered to, with expected amplification of scene, of course, and, with the exception of one role, is as well played as it was on the stage. Not a laugh has been sacrificed. If anything, a few have been added—thanks to extraordinary performances by Jack Oakie, Gregory Ratoff and Onslow Stevens.

This is a batch of high-power hilarity I emphatically urge every lover of sheer amusement, for its own sake, not to miss.

There is an offering coming into the National on Sunday night that will do with a bit of looking over, too. Brown and Henderson's "Forward, March," which opened in Philadelphia night before last, brings Eric Cowley, noted English actor, who appeared here in "Hay Fever," in a featured role, to say nothing of a large contingent of feminine pulchritude, including the "ten most photographed girls in the world." Forward March" was staged by Seymour Felix, who also served in a similar capacity on the most successful of Brown and Henderson's contributions to the cinema—"Just Imagine" and "Sunnyside Up."

And just to keep the record straight, the complete list of new attractions in the movie houses, when they all get going tomorrow, will be: RKO-Keith's, Lee Tracy and Constance Cummings in "The Washington Merry-Go-Round"; Metropolitan, Loretta Young and Eric Linden in "Life Begins;" Rialto, Jack Oakie, Aline MacMahon, Louis Fazenda, Sidney Fox and Gregory Ratoff in "Once in a Lifetime;" Earle, Marian Nixon and Jack Oakie in "Madison Square Garden," and Fred Bradna's three-ringed circus on the stage; Loew's Fox, Warner Baxter in "Six Hours to Live," and Arthur Jarrett and Joe Frisco headlining the vaudeville; Columbia, Ben Lyon, James Gleason, Irene Purcell and ZaSu Pitts in "The Crooked Circle;" Palace, Harold Lloyd in "Movie Crazy."

And if it is music you are after, don't forget the first concert of the season by the National Symphony Orchestra, Hans Kindler conductor, this afternoon, and Lawrence Tibbett's only concert appearance of the season tomorrow night.

And another thing. Halloween night, Monday, October 31, will be observed at Loew's Fox with a special midnight performance. The picture will be "Faithless," costarring Tallulah Bankhead and Robert Montgomery, but it is the vaudeville headliner the management believes will pull the crowd to a midnight show—Duke Ellington and his famous Harlem Band.

Just hang on tight, only eighteen days more and we will be rid of this "of the people, by the people and for the people" business for another four years—praise be to Allah!

"THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND." Columbia Pictures filmization of a story by Maxwell Anderson, adapted to the screen by Jo Swerling, featuring Lee Tracy, Constance Cummings, Alan Dinehart and Walter Connolly, with Frank Sheridan, Arthur Vinton, Arthur Hoyt and Clarence Muse. Directed by James Cruze. Previewed last Saturday midnight.

By NELSON B. BELL.

Here is a bit of flag-waving which in indefatigability and patriotic fervor has probably never been approximated on the screen. Aiming its heaviest barrages at an ostensible plunderbund, constituting an "invisible Government" of these United States—with occasional vagrant potshots at the Constitution-scoffers, the bonus marchers and a few others whose love of country seems open to debate—and bearing no relation whatever to the anonymous volume of Washington gossip of the same name, "The Washington Merry-Go-Round" manages most of the time to say the right thing, and succeeds always in providing fast-moving, timely and exciting entertainment.

It does not, of course, present a true picture of political and social life in the Capital, although its deficiencies in this regard will be less noticeable elsewhere than here. From time to time it slightly confuses Washington and Hollywood, but it never muddles the idea that this is a great and glorious Nation of which its people have a right to be proud and a right to run, free from the entanglements of predatory party bosses and an army of leprous lobbyists.

The principal figure in the fable is Representative Button Gwinnett Brown, who lets the machine put him in Congress for one term so that he may kick it to pieces from the inside. This he almost succeeds in doing before they can invoke the shady subterfuge of a recount and euchre him out of office. By that time he has fallen desperately in love with Senator Wylie's charming daughter, Alice; convinced the senator of his friends' perfidy, hamstrung the head grafter, with the aid of the B. E. F., made a succession of rousing speeches and generally set governmental affairs in order.

This, of course, is the role played with his customary enthusiasm by Lee Tracy. In point of oratorical demands, it is probably the most sizeable job the ebullient Mr. Tracy has ever tackled before the cameras and microphones. Several of his speeches are almost unbelievably long. All are pungent, peppery and provocative of quickened pulses and the inclination to cheer, or maybe start a torchlight procession!

The other pivotal figures are played with deftness and skill by an excellently chosen roster of principals. Constance Cummings is considerably more the schoolgirl type of political and social sophisticate than Karen Morley was in "Washington Masquerade," but, nevertheless, fulfills the agreeable function of foil for Mr. Tracy and Alan Dinehart with picturesqueness and grace. Alan Dinehart, as Ed Norton, archvillain and social lion, offers the most shrewdly contrived character study he has ever brought to the silver sheet—suave, sinister and tenacious in his evil-doing. Walter Connolly, admirable character actor, is no less impressive in his role of the aging and ineffective senator than he was as the befuddled and important old barrister with Helen Hayes in "The Good Fairy" last season or, earlier, as the vengeful solon with Irene Bordoni in the ill-judged "Improper Duchess." Those in the contributory parts acquit themselves with uniform credit.

Particularly adroit is the handling of the Bonus Expeditionary Force as a vital element in the working out of the drama's tonic purposes. A delicate question has here been skirted with utmost discretion and tact. In fact, the whole treatment of the play's explosive subject-matter reflects intelligent restraint in the matter of offensive partisanship. A handsome job of high-powered amusement purveyance.

So ample a diversion is "The Washington Merry-Go-Round," indeed, that it is supplemented only by "Seeing Stars," a "Scrappy" cartoon comedy; a singing organlogue featuring "Singin' Sam," and a new issue of the Pathe News. Get aboard for the ride of your life!

METROPOLITAN

"LIFE BEGINS." First National Picturization of the play "Birth," by Mary MacDouglas Axelson, adapted to the screen by Earl Baldwin, featuring Loretta Young, Eric Linden, Aline MacMahon and Glenda Farrell, with Frank McHugh, Dorothy Peterson, Vivienne Osborne, Clara Blandick, Hale Hamilton, Gilbert Roland, Preston Foster and Elizabeth Patterson. Directed by James Flood and Elliott Nugent. Previewed Monday midnight.

It required courage, of a sort, I presume, to produce this picture and offer it for mass public consumption. Certainly it required the exercise of the utmost care and discretion to render a drama dealing wholly with the subject of parturition as free from qualities of questionable taste as this one is. It will supply those who are merely morbidly curious meager compensation for the time spent in viewing it. "Life Begins" is an intelligent and impressive utilization of a topic that has seldom been looked upon as a fruitful source of theatrical entertainment and therefore adds the mollifying tang of novelty to a succession of events in themselves rather terrifying in their constant implication of disaster.

The scenes are laid in a lying-in hospital and, for the greater part, in the maternity ward and operating room. They reflect less a drama of action, in the usual sense, than the personal reactions of a considerable group of women of sharply contrasted walks of life, viewpoints and environments to the imminent ordeal of childbirth. It is the physical travail and emotional turmoil of procreation with which the drama principally concerns itself—at times with clinical minuteness, yet never in a manner to make sensationalism seem the picture's deliberate goal.

The episodes utilized to lend color to the film's major narratives are laced together by the pitiful little story of the expectant young mother who comes to the hospital from prison, where she is under long sentence for murder. Accompanying her is her equally youthful husband. Fear fills their hearts. But so does love, and thus does their story, provide an interval of the most poignant drama the screen has known when, after 30 anguished hours, the attending physicians resort to surgery and sacrifice the life of the mother that the life of her baby may come into the world.

Surrounding Grace Sutton and her tortured husband, Jed, in the grim corridors between life and death, are a show girl, awaiting twins, who fills her hot water bottle with whisky and bargains to sell them for $75 apiece; a middle-aged mother awaiting the arrival of her sixth offspring; Mrs. MacGilvary, the pampered beauty; Miss Lorton, who resents "Mrs." erroneously prefixed to her name, as a gratuitous attempt to fashion her life; the psychopathic patient, who yearns for the baby she can not have, and numerous others. These and other roles of similar import are played by Loretta Young and Eric Linden, as the young married couple, whom they make figures of exquisite pathos; Glenda Farrell, Clara Blandick, Vivienne Osborne, Ruthelma Stevens, Dorothy Peterson and an able cast.

Then, of course, there are the nurses—particularly Aline MacMahon, head nurse of the ward—the doctors, led by Hale Hamilton, and the expectant husbands, among whom Frank McHugh executes the most convincing portrait of a "first" father who fainted because everything went well!

"Life Begins" has been sincerely and sympathetically directed, but it would be treating the truth lightly to say that it is always delicate. It is not. It is, however, only indelicate when the realistic facts of obstetrics make it so.

Offsetting the somberness of the feature is a Technicolor musical comedietta, "Picking a Winner," the Paramount Sound News and a cartoon-song comedy, "I Wish I Had Wings."

The attitude of the amusement-seeker toward "Life Begins" will depend entirely upon personal taste. The film throws open to the world the private and closely guarded inner chambers of institutions from which the casual curiosity seeker customarily is barred.

LOWER PRICES LOOM AS GRID ATTENDANCE DROPS

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE name and fame of Notre Dame has been curiously missing from the headlines this season with four weeks of the campaign already in the records.

It was inevitable from that bleak March day in 1931 when Knute Rockne crashed to his death in a passenger plane that tumbled to earth on the barren wastes of Kansas, that Notre Dame would suffer a relapse in its football glorification, but the decline seems to have set in quite speedily.

Under the first year of Coach Heartly Anderson's regime, Notre Dame met with a comparatively poor season. Taking over an unbeaten eleven inherited from Rockne at the start of the 1931 season, Anderson saw his charges lose to Army, 12-0; to Southern California, 16-14, and held to a scoreless tie by Northwestern. Two losses and a tie constitute a poor season for Notre Dame, especially a defeat by an Army team that was beaten 26-0 by Pitt and 14-13 by Harvard.

Impressive Schedules Made by Rockne.

Neither has Notre Dame the impressive schedule that Rockne was wont to book for the Irish. Haskell, Drake, Carnegie Tech and Kansas hardly figure to test Notre Dame, yet these four games are among the first five on the Irish's 1932 schedule. Under Rockne, Notre Dame usually firmly established itself as a national championship contender in its first five games.

Rockne's "suicide" schedules, as much as any other factor, contributed to the esteem in which Notre Dame was held by the football world. In his last year as coach, 1930, Rockne's team had disposed of Southern Methodist, Navy, Carnegie, Pitt and Indiana in its first five games, to command the early respect of every opponent on the schedule.

After that, Rockne's 1930 team went on to beat Penn, Drake, Northwestern, Army and Southern California, to cement its claims to the national title in no uncertain manner.

Notre Dame's 1932 Tests Yet to Come.

Notre Dame's real tests of the 1932 season have yet to come—Pittsburgh, Northwestern, Navy, Army and Southern California—but "the man in the street," who has adopted Notre Dame as a vicarious alma mater, will have little to cheer about this season until the campaign is half over.

Rockne's personality plus is sadly missed by Notre Dame. His magical touch, which transformed losing teams into winners, and which dipped deep down into the strategical and psychological bags of tricks, were largely responsible for the aura of invincibility built up around the man. As author of the "Rockne" system, he stood preeminent among football coaches. The name Rockne stood for national football championships, and it was quite believable that, with his passing, Notre Dame prestige was bound to suffer.

Notre Dame Good Copy in Rockne's Day.

With Rockne on the scene, making speeches, telling his stories, urging his players, cajoling them, whipping them into frenzied obsession to win, Notre Dame was sparkling copy for the newspapers. Rarely an edition went to press without a new Rockne item. His name and Notre Dame's were synonymous with the apex in college football and their fame increased with every season.

And there is no better commentary on Notre Dame's loss than the fact that during the past two seasons Notre Dame has found it expedient to outfit a high-powered publicity bureau to carry the name of the school directly to the sports editors. Rockne needed no public relations staff. His actions were followed by football students and lay fans alike. His words commanded columns in the public prints. His football teams were incomparable. Verily, his successor must fill a pair of 7-league boots.

Eastern High Post Lost by Wondrack

Move Is Aftermath of Hardell's Protest of Appointment.

THE second postponement yesterday of the Eastern-Tech High School game has cost Artie Wondrack his job as assistant coach of the Eastern eleven for this season.

Wondrack, a former Tech star who for several years has assisted Coach Elmer Hardell with the training of the Tech Team, was appointed assistant coach at Eastern ten days ago, a week before his new charges were to meet Tech in the series. Coach Hardell protested the move on the grounds that Wondrack was fully familiar with Tech's plays and if he were conscientious in his new position would show Eastern how to stop Tech.

It was then agreed between the two schools that Wondrack would not assume his duties at Eastern until after the Tech game, which was scheduled for the first time last Tuesday. Rain on Tuesday and again yesterday forced the postponement of the game until after the regular series schedule is completed, thus leaving Wondrack's status in the same embarrassing situation.

Wondrack Not to Coach This Season.

Principal Charles Hart of Eastern yesterday settled Wondrack's position by announcing that the assistant coach would not be permitted to assume his duties at Eastern this season in deference to his former connection at Tech.

Tech is understood to have protested vigorously when high school officials sought to postpone the game again yesterday rather than expose an estimated group of several thousand schoolchildren to sit through a drizzle to watch the game. Tech, mostly in the person of Hap Hardell, finally yielded, with the reservation that it could not play until the close of the regular series.

When the schedule makers arranged the interhigh series dates, they could not foresee the dilemma which has been caused by the "luck of the draw." Hardell yesterday pointed out that Tech could not possibly play tomorrow (which is an open date caused by the default of Roosevelt High) because Tech must play Western, a capable foe, on Tuesday.

Present Eligibles Only May Play in Delayed Game.

The same thing holds true the following Friday, October 28, another open date, when Tech could not see its way clear to meet Eastern because it must play Central on the following Tuesday. The next logical date would be November 8, when Eastern will have no opponent because Roosevelt forfeited, but Eastern refused to play on that day due to the fact that it meets Central on the following Tuesday, November 11.

Bending over backward to denote that they are not deliberately postponing the game with the subrosa purpose of waiting until the end of the first advisory period—when they gain Joe Keegin and Eddie McNamara, former Gonzagans—Eastern yesterday informed Tech that neither player would be permitted to play when the two teams finally meet. Further, Eastern agreed that no player who is now ineligible, and who becomes eligible later in the season, will be used against Tech when the two teams meet some time near the middle of November. Eastern, however, insisted that any player now eligible, who later becomes ineligible, should be permitted to play in the game.

Eastern vigorously denied that if had any other motive in insisting on the two postponements than the protection of the health of the high school football-minded students.

Capital-Owned Dogs Win in Fox Trials

Chesterfield Courthouse, Va., Oct. 19 (A.P.)—Jenny Smith, red matron owned by D. C. Smith, of Caroline County, today outsmarted a pack of more than 40 young hounds to win the derby stake in the Virginia Fox Hunters Association trials.

Mid-Atlantic Pro Title to Spencer

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 19.—Glenn Spencer is the new Middle Atlantic Professional Golfers Association champion, having won his title through the conquest of Charley Betschler, of the Rodgers Forge Golf Club, 6 and 5, over the 36-hole route today at the Maryland Country Club.

Through his card, Spencer recorded four birdies and finished the match one under par for the distance. His morning round of eighteen holes was an even par, 71. Betschler had a 74.

Football Contest Replies Pour Into Post

HUNDREDS of local football fans deluged The Post's Football Contest Editor yesterday with their selections for this Saturday's feature football games. This week's contest continues today and closes at midnight tomorrow, with four box seats to the George Washington-Iowa game of October 28 going to the man, woman or child who guesses, or figures out, the greatest number of winners.

Be sure to write in the score by which you believe your favorite teams will win, for the nearness of your scores to the actual results of the games is the only method we have of breaking ties. Sign your name and address to the last two lines and the thing is done. There is nothnig else to do. Address all clippings to the Football Contest Editor, The Washington Post.

A good method of finding the past performances of the 24 teams listed below is to clip Monday morning's Post, which carries the season's records of nearly 100 leading college teams. Another, and somewhat reliable tip, is to check over the results of last year's meetings between the teams, printed in The Post's sport pages twice a week. These contests will continue weekly throughout the grid season.

The enormous number of letters received on this contest has prompted the Contest Editor to offer two additional prizes. To the person who finishes second this week will be given two excellent seats to the George Washington-Iowa game, while the third place holder receives one ticket.

Army Eleven Profits by Setback

News and Notes of Other Teams Along Eastern Front.

By EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Strange indeed is a football situation where defeat, instead of leaving discouragement and blasted hope in its wake, suddenly "makes" an eleven, welds it together, brands it an unexpectedly mighty foe for new battles impending.

So Army today has a word of thanks for the conquering Panthers of Pittsburgh and the job they did last Saturday in preparing the Cadets for renewal this week of a 30-year-old quarrel with Yale.

Out of that breathless melee the last West Point machine of Maj. Ralph Sasse comes charging down upon the Elis with the new realization on all sides that but for the luck of the game Army might just as easily have won their terrific struggle on the plains, instead of losing, 18 to 13.

As a result the Cadets take close rank, in power at least, with a Pittsburgh squad that may be the finest in the East. Correspondingly Yale hopes for Saturday have dipped to a new low for an already deeply depressed Eli market. There was nothing of hope and the possibility of redemption in Yale's 7-to-2 upset at the hands of Brown.

Fifteen times, since 1893, the Cadets have come down from the Plains and in all that time have carried back the Bulldog's hide only five times. Yale has won eighteen games in the series, and eight times they have tied. For the past two seasons there have been no decisions, deadlocked 7-7 in 1930 and 6-6 in 1931.

But this time things are different. Unless Yale can find a pair of ends to stop the sweeps of Ken Fields, Travis Brown, Paul Johnson and the rest of the Army Greyhounds, Army looks for repetition of its last victory in 1928, when Chris Cable roamed up and down the bowl at New Haven to win, 18 to 6.

New York—Ernie Vavra, veteran New York University tackle, who has been on the injured list for two weeks, returned to practice as the Violets held a long drill in preparation for meeting Colgate. He took part only in the signal practice, but is expected to start against the Maroons.

New York—Columbia scrimmaged against Manhattan in the rain today for half of its two-hour drill. The second team got a lot of work and it it possible that the reserves may start against Williams to prevent possible injuries to the regulars before meeting Cornell.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 19.—Charles Ceppi, former reserve guard at Princeton, was shifted to left tackle in an effort to fill the hole left by Art Lane's injury. The Tigers looked good against Navy running plays in a defensive scrimmage, but were weak against passes.

New Haven, Conn.—Yale drilled on new plays to be used against Army in a short supervised scrimmage. Bob O'Connell, injured since early in the season, reported for action and was placed at left end.

Cambridge, Mass.—Rain drove Harvard indoors but Coach Eddie Casey found a pair of portable goal posts and drilled his kickers at making points after touchdowns. The forward pass defense also came in for much attention.

George Washington U. Squad Bound for Tulsa Game

McVean, Holbrook, Gearty Ready for Manhattan.

WITH Tom McVean, Babe Gearty and Irvine Holbrook back in shape, Catholic University will meet Manhattan College Saturday in New York in better physical condition than the Cards have enjoyed all year. The meeting between the changes of Chuck Meehan and Dutch Bergman will be played at Ebbet's Field, and will be Manhattan's final home game for the season.

Working out against Manhattan plays yesterday Catholic University's first and second squads combated the hardy Cardinal plebe team to good effect. For nearly an hour the varsity squads took the brunt of the freshman attack, fashioned after the solid line thrusts taught by Meehan at Manhattan. For the remainder of the workout, C. U. practiced its highly touted offense.

Holbrook Important to Line.

McVean and Gearty are C. U.'s two leading quarter backs, both of whom have been ailing in the last two weeks. Holbrook has been out since near the start of the season with a ailing leg. His 200-pound frame will bring the Cards to an equal weight plane with Manhattan in the line.

C. U. holds its final real workout of the week today and will leave for New York tomorrow afternoon. The team worked out lightly in the C. U. gymnasium last night.

C. U. Seeks Major Games For Capital Next Season

Catholic University plans to broaden its scope in football next year by bringing several well-known college teams to Washington. Coach Dutch Bergman will attend the Southern Conference meeting and is reported to be interested in bringing a well-known Southern Conference team to the Capital in 1933, probably either Tennessee or Georgia Tech.

It is also reported that efforts may be made to have the C. U.-Holy Cross game played in Washington next year. Much of C. U.'s future dealings with large institutions depends on the showing of the team this season.

Hitting the Headpin

THREE all-time bowling records in the Bankers' League went by the boards last night at the Arcadia Alleys in a sharpshooting exhibition by Jimmy Brigges and his Riggs team.

Brigges, rolling in rare form, toppled the maples for a new 175 game mark, cracking the former record, owned by Scharf, of Second National Bank, by ten pins. Brigges finished with a high set of 415, one shy of equaling the all-time mark, but ten better than the season's record of 405, held by Perce Elliott. The Riggs team broke 642 and 1,666 for new all-time high team game and high set records, respectively.

To add to the terrific onslaught, Clark, Pardoe and Reed, of Riggs, shot individual games of 155, 161 and 155—all better than the season's high game mark.

Arcade moved closer to the top post in the Ladies' District League by winning three from Lucky Strike, with Mrs. Ester Burton's 142 and 366 high for the night. Arcade reeled off 575 and 1,587 to take team honors.

Meyer Davis won three from M-5 via the forfeit route at Convention Hall. King Pin, loop leaders, made a clean sweep of the there games with Convention Hall, triumphing with 510-499-510. Convention Hall will be minus the services of Eva Gude, sterling feminine bowler, who was stricken with appendicitis yesterday and will be out for the rest of the season. Annetta Matthew, of King Pin, led her team with 123 and 313. Individual honors went to Elizabeth Mason, of Convention Hall, with 136 and 331.

Rendezvous, champions, won two after dropping the first to Petworth. Irene Scott, of Petworth, was high with 121 and 336.

Mrs. Jennie Malcolm, with a 119 high game and 333 set, won honors as Recreation beat Georgetown two out of three. Recreation shot 462-557-498; Georgetown, 506-487-484.

Kenicep, of Rotary, stole the show in the Civics Club League with a 138 high individual game and 363 high set.

In the Dynamite League, Shelton, of Wrecking Crew, cracked the pins for 136 high game, while Long, of Little Potatoes, clicked off 337 high set. Sand Blowers set a season's record with 554, with Wrecking Crew capturing high team set with 1,509.

King Pin rallied to annex two games from Occidental Restaurant after dropping the first in the Men's District League. Occidental had sets of 598, 596 and 611; King Pin, 553, 615 and 581. Astor Clarke led with 140 and 378. Woods, Miller and Smith shot in the 130s. Convention Hall took three games from Petworth with sets of 562, 578 and 545. Walston, of Convention Hall, paced the bowlers with 148 and 369. Bill Clampitt led Petworth with 144 and 362.

In the Bureau of Standards League, at the Columbia Alleys, British T. U. set the team pace with 1,614 and 582. Cragoe shot a high set of 343 and Wensel a high game of 135. Specials, however, won two out of three games.

Bazzuro Engineering Co. defeated the Blisters, two out of three, in the North of Washington Duckpin League last night. Roudabush, of Bazzuro, had high individual set with 349, and Mullinux, of Blisters, shot 140 for high game.

2,000-Mile Jaunt to Tulsa May Slow Up Colonials.

THE consensus of opinion in Washington's football circles is that the 2,000-mile railroad trip George Washington University's football team embarked upon yesterday—en route to the University of Tulsa—is the real deciding factor between the two teams. The confinement of such a trip, even aboard the luxurious special the team will use, is expected to militate seriously against the Colonials' chances of winning.

Otherwise the two teams are rated equal in strength. Early in the season, when Tulsa once more unleashed Billy Boehm and the rest of its prancing and passing back field aces, the Tulsa game seemed a little out of reach of George Washington, but the Colonials have come ahead rapidly since the start of the year, possessing a first-water line and a decidedly improved bunch of ball carriers.

In order to break up the trip as much as possible, and keep the players limbered up, Coach Jimmy Pixlee will call a stiff workout today in St. Louis. The team will practice at the Washington University Stadium in that city, and go on to Tulsa tonight, arriving tomorrow morning, where another workout will be held.

Another factor the Colonial coaching staff is hoping will nullify the disadvantage of a 2,000-mile trip is that many of the boys will be returning to the general region whence they sprung. There are six Texans and three Oklahomans on the squad, including Capt. Wayne Chambers, from Commerce, Okla.

G. W.'s hopes lie in the passing arms of Johnnie Fenlon and Nig McCarver, many critics believe. The Colonials plan to meet Tulsa at its own game of passing and wide open football is in prospect.

Schwartz Insists On 8-Round Bout

Benny Schwartz and Frankie DeAngelo, principals in next Monday's boxing program at Portner's Arena in Alexandria, will fight eight rounds instead of ten as orginally scheduled. Matchmaker Frankie Mann last night announced. Schwartz, objecting vigorously to a ten-rounder with the Italian scrapper, went into a huddle Before agreeing to meet DeAngelo, he forced the promotor to slice off with Mann and emerged the victor. two rounds, it was stated.

Three weeks ago DeAngelo and Schwartz staged a rousing duel at Portner's. It was a draw.

The card for next week was completed yesterday with Nick Antonelli clashing in the semiwindup of six with Willie Essinger and Jimmy DeCapua and Bill Strickler battling in a six-round main preliminary, two other four rounders were arranged. Jesse Belt opposes Jack Quigley and Bob Lowry meets Joe Raspi, of Baltimore.

Told to 'Lay Down' By Pilot, Says Bass

Philadelphia, Oct. 19 (U.P.).—Charging that his manager, Phil Glassman, had instructed him to "lay down" to inferior opponents, Benny Bass, former featherweight and junior lightweight boxing champion, today filed suit asking that he be released from his contract with Glassman.

The Bass-Glassman contract was signed December 24, 1925, and still has over three years to run.

Bass also lists a complaint that Glassman had attempted to bring about a separation between him and his wife and paid him only one-half or less of his earnings, instead of their agreed two-thirds.

Bass indicated that he had never followed Glassman's orders to "carry" anyone.

DRY GRIDIRON NOW HOPE OF G. U.

Heavy Field Would Be Advantageous to W. Maryland.

THE sun can not come out too soon for Georgetown's football team. The Hoyas, with their quick-shifting, mercury-ankled backs, are not "mudders," a racehorse term that peculiarly applies to Western Maryland's Green Terrors, who will be met at Griffith Stadium Saturday afternoon in one of the gridiron features of the year.

A disciple of the heavy-footed power plays of Pop Warner, Western Maryland cares not whether the sun shines or the clouds pour, for it makes little difference in a game whose offense is almost totally made up of solid thrusts at the opposing line. Georgetown's slight margin over the Terrors may be shaved down almost to even money if the Stadium field is muddy.

Western Maryland's ace ball carrier, Jimmy Dunn, will be back in the game again Saturday. Dunn gave Georgetown plenty of trouble last year when the Hilltoppers broke the two-year winning streak of the Terrors in a spectacular game at the ball park. Bill Shepherd, substitute half back, is a sophomore sensation whom Coach Harlow has developed into a first-rate ball carrier. The Terror line is big and sturdy.

Stressing fundamentals, mainly blocking, Coach Tommy Mills, dynamic leader of Georgetown's football destinies, yesterday sent the Hoyas through a long workout, winding up with a stiff scrimmage session between the first stringers and a secondary eleven. He was pleased enough with the way the team handled the ball, but knows that a slippery underfooting is bad news for his club.

Gibson Signs Contract With Pirates for 1933

Pittsburgh, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—George Gibson, manager of the Pittsburgh Baseball Club, tonight signed a contract to continue in his job for 1933.

His salary was not made public, but baseball circles believe he received an increase, largely in reward for leading the Pirates into scond place at the finish of the National League's pennant race.

Survey Tells Of Decline In Crowds

Harvard Is Off 30 Per Cent; Southern Conference Hit.

Yale Far Under 1931; Big Ten Provides Cheaper Seats.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Further reduction in the price of college football tickets in some parts of the country has resulted from a continued drop in attendance, amounting so far this year to approximately 20 per cent, as compared with 1931 figures covering the country's major intercollegiate groups.

Although the attendance decrease has been widespread, several colleges in the South and Far West indicate an upswing, including Stanford, Utah, Duke, Auburn, Alabama and North Carolina State.

"The decline in gate receipts for the big games likely will lead to further reduction of prices," William J. Bingham, Harvard's director of athletics, told the Associated Press. "It is possible a solution will be found in establishing a wider range of prices for the major contests, the top price for which now is $4, plus tax, less than it was a year ago."

Decrease of 30 Per Cent at Harvard.

The situation at Harvard, where the attendance up to and including the advance sale for this Saturday's game with Dartmouth shows a falling off in excess of 30 per cent, is echoed elsewhere in Nation-wide reports gathered today by the Associated Press.

In the Big Ten, where attendance is estimated to be off from 20 to 30 per cent, Chicago, Minnesota and Ohio State already have taken steps to provide cheaper seats. The price was cut to $1 in the curved end section for last Saturday's Minnesota-Nebraska game. Season tickets at Chicago are priced at $5 for six games, as compared with $13 last season. The falling off in big game attendnace is reflected in a turnout of only 22,000 for the Northwestern-Illinois game, as compared with 60,000 at Champaign two years ago, and 42,000 for Ohio State-Michigan, as compared with a normal 75,000.

RIDEAWAY, PAYING $121.10, WINS CHEVY CHASE STEEPLECHASE

Green Cheese Defeated by 60-1 Shot

Choice Loses Laurel $5,000 Feature at Last Jump.

Absolute, Lei Score at Long Odds in Early Races.

By WALTER HAIGHT.

TURF HISTORY is replete with Whitney victories, and few important racing fixtures do not list that popular name among the owners of previous winners. Until yesterday the $5,000 added Chevy Chase Steeplechase Handicap had always eluded the Whitney clan. Widener, Ross, Macomber, Hitchcock, Salmon and Jeffords are some of the familiar turf names which have figured in Chevy Chase victories.

It remained for Mrs. Gwladys Whitney, wife of C. V. ("Sonny") Whitney, to send the winner to the post in the twenty-second running yesterday. The horse was Rideaway, an underrated son of Wildair and Bubble. Under a brilliantly timed race by Jockey G. Smoot the jumper triumphed over Green Cheese, the property of the winning owner's sister, Mrs. John Hay Whitney, by a margin of three lengths. A length and a half behind came William Almy, jr.'s Citron.

Record Mutuel for Whitney-Owned Horse.

A record mutuel price for Whitney-owned horses was set when Rideaway paid a $121.10 win mutuel. The victory enriched Mrs. Whitney's purse by $5,275.

The public money sparred for a favorite after a number of scratches had cut down the starting field to eight and the choice was determined as the Hitchcock entry of Escapade and Silver Skin. The horses proved the only casualties of a colorful race. Escapade fell at the eleventh fence and an "Oh!" went up from the clubhouse because the rider was G. H. (Pete) Bostwick, the millionaire horse boy. However, Pete turned a handspring to show he was none the worse for the experience and walked back.

When the field left the barrier, Lord Johnson, a son of Sir Johnson, which is fast on the run and slow on the jumps, went to the front followed by the heavily played Irish Bullet, Silverskin and Rideaway. There were no changes in the leaders and no falls on the first turn. Lord Johnson was slowing but still leading. On the final swing Green Cheese, Citron and Rideaway moved steadily up as the two leaders began to tire.

Green Cheese Wobbles on Taking Last Jump.

Green Cheese forged to the front on the swing for the last two jumps followed by Citron and Rideaway. The three were close as they took the final fence, but Rideaway made the best jump, with Green Cheese wobbling as he landed. On the flat, Smoot whipped Rideaway and he drew away at the finish.

The Coe Stable accounted for its third purse since the mud came up when Pompalo, another daughter of Pompey, came from behind to take the opener from Light Ripple and Gala Time.

The first of the distance races for 2-year-olds went to Absolute, a 10-1 shot, which beat the favored Apprehensive. Gonspray, another long one, was third. Absolute broke on top and was never headed, having a length advantage over Apprehensive, which came up to beat out Gonspray. The latter had battled the ultimate winner for the pace-setting honor throughout the race.

Another lightly regarded youngster, Lei, won the second juvenile distance test. He paid a $15.20 mutuel to beat out Vote and True Sweep. Few took the Vote hunch and he paid $33 to place. Lei was another front runner, taking the lead at the clubhouse turn to coast home.

Mountain Elk, making his first Maryland start, won a close decision over Aegis in the fifth race, a 6-furlong sprint. Third money went to Wise Count. It was a brilliant stretch battle, with Bobby Jones on the winner holding his mount ahead long enough to withstand the charge of Aegis and Buddy Hanford.

Little Stroke, with Tex Callahan in the saddle, stayed behind the pace set by You Darling and the favorite, Don Tasker, to take the lead coming into the stretch and pull away to an easy victory in the sixth.

AT THE POST

DEAR AL: LAUREL RACE TRACK.

With the soggy track as an excuse for form reversals, the favorites took a beating yesterday. In fact, they were completely shut out of the picture as the long shots rolled home. With little change in the going expected by post time today, the cold dope players appear to have another losing battle on their hands. I played only a minor role in the Moonshooters Jubilee yesterday. Pompalo was my only winning choice at a $12 mutuel but that price was the third lowest of the day. BILL.

FIRST RACE—TEABERRY gets my call. In fact, I have been waiting for this one. Watched him jammed against the rail in a race behind Filter and appeared to have the goods. Gets a good post position today and should take care of these. Has been close up with much better. MAHOMET will appreciate the going. SKY HAVEN third, if he gets in.

SECOND RACE—MARVAN looks like the solid one here. Seems to be regaining speed, and an off track should not bother him. OCTARORO was second to Lei, a winner yesterday in his only Maryland start. POSTPONEMENT for the show.

THIRD RACE—DANCING MACK beat a fairly good field the first time out here. The company is just a little better today, but the horse may be that much improved. LILLYBET showed signs of coming to life the last time and may place ahead of COLOSSAL.

FOURTH RACE—WARD-IN-CHANCERY finished fast the last time, and off that effort I'm trying to get him to knock down QUIVER. The latter won last out, but may not fancy the going. MING SUN for the show.

FIFTH RACE—SNAPLOCK'S best races have been run from back in the field with a burst of speed in the stretch. The last time, he tried to set the pace and was not there when the final test came. With the added distance, I look for a different ride and a winning one. The COE ENTRY to beat the rest. SUN ARCHER for show.

SIXTH RACE—BUTTER BEANS gets in this with only 100 pounds. He ran well at Lincoln Fields and with one sprint here under his belt may provide an upset. SANS COIN and HYMAN for the rest.

SEVENTH RACE—FLAG TRICK gets in cheap company with light weight and if he don't do it here I recommend him for the glue factory. BLACK BOARD is due to wake up. THE DOCTOR can take it all.

MARYLAND U. CHOICE OVER ST. JOHN'S

Rivals of 28 Seasons Clash Saturday on Old Line Field.

SOME ONE with a mathematical bent dived into the yellowing record books yesterday and extracted a host of mangy statistics on the ancient battles between Maryland and St. John's, and arrived at the conclusion that Saturday's meeting between the two is the twenty-eighth game the two have played—and both have won thirteen and two have been tied.

The series started back in the gay nineties, B. C. (before cellophane), when Maryland was an agriculture college, when flying wedges were as common on a football field as bristling mustachios, and the forward pass was still unborn.

The last St. John's victory over Maryland was in 1921 and the one before that in 1913.

St. John's Has Better Chance This Year.

St. John's could not have chosen a better year to renew relations with Maryland than this one, when the Old Liners are suffering the pangs of rebuilding. Maryland, bigger than in some time, and possessing much speed in its back field, has yet to click in proper fashion all season—possibly the result of a raft of sophomores who are experiencing their first varsity competition.

St. John's showed to good advantage last Saturday in defeating St. Joseph's or Philadelphia, 9-0. Catholic University had some trouble with the Saints last year.

Maryland will go into the St. John's game a favorite to win, based on the presumption that its fleet backs are worked loose. Particularly is this so of Earl Widmyer, who, given half a break, can easily outsprint any competition he'll meet this year.

The forward pass, which played no part in the early meetings between the teams, may have a feature role Saturday at Byrd Stadium, with Dick Nelson, of Maryland, firing them to all corners of the lot.

Webb Defeats Fowler, 1 Up, to Reach Finals

Dr. Thomas Webb yesterday forged into the finals of the Washington Golf and Country Club championship by defeating Ralph Fowler, in a ding-dong match, 1 up. He will clash with Reese Hair next week to decide the title formerly held be H. D. Nicholson.

Dr. Webb was two up at the turn in his match with Fowler, but the latter rallied and won the next three holes to become one up going to the thirteenth. Webb scored a birdie two on the fourteenth and a birdie four on the fifteenth to take over the lead, but on the sixteenth Fowler played two beautiful shots and sank his putt for a birdie to level the match. Webb won the seventeenth when Fowler banged his second into a ditch. They halved the eighteenth in fours.

GRID CROWDS SHOW BIG DECLINE

Denver have slashed prices and banned radio broadcasting in the Rocky Mountain area, where reports show a drop of around 10 to 15 per cent in attendance. Tennessee plans to cut admission prices outside the midfield zones, as the result of a 30 per cent drop. Columbia has found New York fans receptive to a bargain scale of prices for reserved seats, tried out last Saturday, and will continue the experiment.

No further price cuts are planned in the Southwest Conference, where such crowds as 23,000 for the Texas-Oklahoma game at Dallas and an advance sale of 21,000 for the Texas-Rice contest this week at Houston have encouraged athletic directors to believe competitive inducements will bring out normal attendance.

Decreases in the Pacific Coast Conference have been relatively "slight," the reports say, due to the balancing influence of a third increase in attendance at Stanford's games. Between 65,000 and 80,000 are expected to see the Indians play Southern California at Palo Alto this Saturday.

Trojans Holding Own at Gate.

Southern California's reports show the Trojans are holding their own so far at the gate. The University of California has experienced a drop of less than 10 per cent and Washington about the same. St. Mary's show a decline of 25 per cent.

Decreases have been general in the Big Six and Southern Conferences, as well as throughout the East, but there are some encouraging signs in scattered reports. Poor weather affected the turnouts for several big Southern games last week. North Carolina State, meanwhile, reports a slight increase while South Carolina and Georgia Tech athletic directors declare attendance is about the same, even though gate receipts have fallen off as a result of lower prices.

Yale's figures are considerably below 1931 and the big bowl at New Haven is not expected to have its usual sell-out for the Army game this Saturday. Pennsylvania, however, as well as Princeton and Columbia have benefited, at the gates, from the effect of better performances by their teams.

Stocks Climb 2.2 Points, After Losing Early Gains

Grain Advance Gives Aid as Turnover Rises to 1,314,830 Shares.

New York, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—After some hesitation, stocks became bolder in the late trading today and closed with an assortment of 1 to 4 points net gains.

An earlier advance, led by rails, had been largely forfeited when wheat took a sudden spurt at Chicago. Its last-minute sally of a cent a bushel net was reflected quickly on the stock exchange, where quotations renewed their rise in more active trading. Turnover in the last 50 minutes was about 600,000 shares, which nearly equaled volume for the first four hours.

Selling of the tobaccos again threatened, at one time, to upset the advancing trend, but shorts in those stocks covered when the market made its final turn and losses were regained. Bonds traded very quietly, but cotton followed shares and wheat. Rails turned over at a good pace, stimulated by the surprisingly favorable trend of loadings last week, but other groups eventually caught up with them and the closing tone was strong. Sales totaled 1,314,830 shares.

New York Central and Pennsylvania systems, in the East, reported continued improvement in freight shipments, while several roads in other sections also returned favorable statistics.

On the theory that this showing reflected business expansion throughout the country, traders bought rail shares for gains of 1 to about 4 points, the best advance being made by Union Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, New Haven preferred and Lackawanna. Elsewhere, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Western Union, Coca Cola, Allied Chemical, Case, American Can, McKeesport and Public Service of New Jersey were up 2 to 4.

Wednesday's routine sidelights on the state of trade was helpful to the cause of rising prices.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

What the Stock Market Did

	Wed.	Tues.
Advances	331	243
Declines	75	137
Unchanged	94	112
Total issues traded	500	492

Stocks.

A late rally sent prices up 2.2 points. The early gains were wiped out, and the second rise owed its inspiration to the spurt in wheat. The turnover mounted to 1,314,830 shares. Selling of tobacco issues was a menace to the rise, but the obstacle disappeared through short covering.

Bonds.

Loans labored listlessly and finally managed a gain of one-tenth. Advances were principally in semispeculative issues. It was the dullest session since last April. Sales totaled $6,868,000.

Curb.

The market turned upward in following the big board's advance. Trading was quiet. Electric Share & Bond issues sold in large volume at 1⅝ points higher. The turnover mounted to 160,000 shares.

Wheat.

A sharp advance up to 1 cent, made on rumor of a prospective sale of 75,000,000 bushels of wheat to China, also influenced the rise in other grains. Provisions closed with mixed quotations. December wheat sold at 49¼ to 49¼ cents.

Cotton.

Prices advanced moderately on the trade's buying. The general market was up 9 to 15 points. December sold at $6.40. Liverpool reported buying.

Rubber Plant Advances Fleming.

Akron, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Appointment of W. H. Fleming as superintendent of Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.'s California plant, succeeding L. B. Tompkinson, who will return to Akron, was announced today.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—After early losses owing to lower sterling exchange, glittedged securities recovered on the stock exchange. Business in gold mining shares, transatlantic issues, industrials and oil shares broadened, resulting in a steady closing.

Paris—The reaction in the English pound was the dominant feature on the bourse despite yesterday's firmness in Wall street. Rentes and international issues declined and the market closed irregular.

Berlin—Trading on the boerse was slow to the end. The closing was weaker due to the drop in sterling exchange.

BONDS SENT HIGHER ON LIGHTER DEALING

Gain of One-Tenth Is Added as Turnover Falls to $6,868,000.

New York, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—The bond market labored listlessly today and was able to bring forth only moderate gains, principally in some of the semispeculative loan groups.

It was the dullest full day's session since last April, sales totaling only $6,868,000, par value.

United States Government issues, buoyant yesterday, and most issues closed a trifle lower. High-grade obligations were extremely dull and steady. Some of the carrier bonds gained a point or more. They included some liens of Allegheny Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Central Pacific, Chesapeake Corporation, Chicago & North Western, Rock Island, Erie, Kansas City Southern, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, New Haven, Frisco, St. Louis Southwestern, Southern Pacific and Southern.

International Telephone, Postal Telegraph, American Foreign Power and Western Union were up about a point each. Power & Light Co. loans followed a narrow range.

There was a comparatively heavy turnover of Armour & Co. maturities which recorded gains of more than a point. Issues of Liggett & Myers and Lorillard were up on a few sales. Bonds of Texas Corporation and Standard Oil of New York improved.

Declines were in the majority in the foreign department. The Argentines, Australians, Austrians and Japanese were especially soft. Gains were recorded by some of the Brazilians, Cubans, Italians and French. The Germans were irregularly lower.

Foreign Copper Price Holding at 5.75 Cents

New York, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Copper sales in the export market were reported made this week as low as 5.60 to 5.65 cents a pound, but late advices from abroad indicate that the larger producers are holding at the established level of 5.75 cents.

Domestic sellers continue to ask 6¼ cents, which the trade considers a nominal price. Buying in both markets is extremely light.

U. S. Customs Told Japan Wipes Out Rag Rug Trade

(Associated Press.)

Testimony that the rag rug industry had been virtually wiped out and the grass and fiber rug industry seriously injured by importations from Japan was given today before the Commissioner of Customs, F. X. A. Eble.

Manufacturers said Japan was dumping its products into this country. The hearing was confined to showing the American industry had been injured. Under the antidumping law it is necessary to show that products dumped are sold at less than cost, or less than in the home market, and that industry here has suffered.

William H. Redmond, president of the Crex Carpet Co., of St. Paul, testified that grass rugs which cost his company $6.60 were sold by the Japanese to the trade in this country for $3.50. He said the American workers received $3 to $4.50 a day while the Japanese were paid 15 cents to 26 cents a day.

S. R. Arnesong, of the Bigelow-Sandford Carpet Co., of New York, testified that the company's employes had been cut 75 per cent in numbers through the importations of cheap rugs from Japan, France, Belgium and Italy.

All the witnesses testified that large numbers of American workmen had lost employment through importations of the cheaper rugs.

The witnesses included Oliver C. Collins, Topton (Pa.) Rug Co.; Robert R., Charles R. and Roger K. Todd, of the Todd Carpet Manufacturing Co., of Carlisle, Pa.; Albert C. Wirz, of New York; G. E. Malison, of New York, and Frank T. Holt and Roy Cleeland, of Philadelphia.

Cleeland, representing Robert Cleeland & Sons, manufacturers of rag rugs, testified that where there had been 147 such factories, there were now only four or five, and that the industry had almost been wiped out by Japanese competition.

The hearing was the opening of a series which will be conducted by Commissioner Eble. Tomorrow steel interests, headed by Robert P. Lamont, former Secretary of Commerce, will complain of dumping of steel, while the next day the hearings will be on incandescent lamps, and on Saturday on manganese ore.

Next week complaints of leather manufacturers, porcelain and china and canned sea food and matches, will be heard.

Sterling Recovers After Early Break

European Gold Currency Rises; Best Gain Is in Guilders.

New York, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—The British pound sterling, while still weak, exhibited some resistance today and European gold currencies recovered substantially after their decline of yesterday. The pound opened with another sharp break to $3.37 11-16 for cables, but the supply dwindled and prices hardened. At the close sterling was off 1⅜ cents to a cable rate of $3.39⅛. The recovery was said to have been induced partly by short covering.

There was little evidence during the day of any official support appearing for the pound and it was not known whether the Bank of England control extended to intervene at the present quotations. There was no premium on sterling futures, all months being quoted flat for the first time this year.

The best rally of the continental exchanges was in Dutch guilders which came back 4½ points. French, Belgian and Swiss francs recovered as much as 2 points. The Canadian dollar again sagged 3-16 of a cent, to 91.75 cents, while Swedish and Danish crowns were soft.

Silk Futures Close Strong.

New York, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Raw silk futures closed strong; sales, 530 bales. December, 1.57@1.60; March, 1.59; May, 1.59.

Rubber Futures Steady.

New York, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Rubber futures closed very steady. December, 3.40; January, 3.47; March, 3.60@3.63; May, 3.68.

Smoked ribbed spot closed 3.42.

Automobile Lamp Factory to Close

General Electric Blames Imports and Drop in Car Making.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 19 (A.P.).—General Electric Co.'s Buffalo lamp works, employing about 300, will close October 31, Robert O. Poag, the manager, announced today. At the peak of production it employed 600 men. He said decreased demand for automobile lights and heavy importations of Christmas tree lights from Germany and Japan was responsible. Labor costs are the principal item in the manufacture of Christmas tree lights, Poag said.

About sixteen foremen and skilled mechanics will go to other General Electric plants, mostly Youngstown, Ohio, and Newark, N. J., Poag said.

"There is a tariff on these lamps, and if it were higher it naturally would stop this heavy importation, but as it is it is not high enough to cover," Poag said. "The United States must compete with foreign countries where labor is considerably cheaper than it is here."

Cotton Goods Quiet.

New York, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Cotton goods continued quiet today with price weakness reported in some of the print cloth numbers. Many finishing plants are very active. Burlaps were quiet and prices are again near the low point. Rayon markets hold steady.

Less Activity in Wool.

New York, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—There is less activity in the Boston wool market and quotations in many cases are now on the low side of the range which has been maintained during the past few weeks, it is reported in trade circles.

CURB MARKET RISES IN HEAVIER TRADING

Prices Followed Big Board as Volume Mounts to 160,000 Shares.

New York, N. Y., Oct. 19 (A.P.).—The Curb Market turned upward in another quiet session today in sympathy with the big board.

Trading quickened somewhat, but the turnover aggregated only 160,000 shares, against 120,000 yesterday. The market remained a highly professional affair.

Scattered gains were made by the industrials. Deere advanced more than a point, moving as it so often does, with wheat. Federated metals advanced about a point, reflecting announcement that American Smelting had decided to exercise its option to purchase the company. The Fisk Rubber shares were firm, in response to formal announcement that the reorganization plan had become effective. Aluminum Co. rose 4½ points and New Jersey Znic, 1½.

Electric Bond & Share continued to turn over in large volume, and closed 1⅝ points higher. American Gas & Electric gained a point, and in light trading, Cleveland Electric Illuminating and Commonwealth Edison were up as much. Standard Power & Light was a soft spot, appearing at 8½, off 3 points.

Standard of Indiana was a firm feature of the oils, closing up 1⅛. Gulf gained a point in a small turnover. South Penn was under some pressure, closing a fraction lower.

Inquiries for Building Steel Are on Increase

New York, Oct 19 (A.P.).—Contracts for steel for building construction are not noticeably increasing in volume this month, says Iron Age, but inquiries are heavier, forecasting improvement later on.

Reconstruction Finance Croporation loans to a number of municipalities have resulted in inquiries for cast iron pipe, the review states.

Flour Demand Lacks Sustained Steadiness

New York, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Steadiness in cash and futures wheat markets is a supporting influence in the flour market, but trade reports continue to indicate a lack of sustained demand from consuming sources.

On the other hand sellers, it is said, are not inclined to book orders further than 60 days ahead.

More Sugar Liquidation Is Absorbed by Buying

New York, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Some further December liquidation was absorbed by trade buying or covering at the previous closing quotations in the market for sugar futures today.

While buyers seemed willing to take offerings at the present level, they showed no aggressivenss and prices were net unchanged.

Auto Body Plant Adds 1,200 Men to Pay Roll

Detroit, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—C. David Widman, secretary and treasurer of the Murray Corporation of America, manufacturer of automobile bodies, announced today that the company this week is rehiring 1,200 employes, mostly tool makers, and increasing its pay roll about $50,000 a week in preparation for the production of 1933 models by automobile factories.

"As soon as the preliminary details are completed—which means perhaps several months—we expect to be entering direct production," Widman said. "How many more employes that will mean, of course, is still uncertain."

White Auto Shares Back Up Merger

90 Per Cent of Stock Is Reported Deposited on Studebaker Plan.

New York, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—A. R. Erskine, president of the Studebaker Corporation, said today he understood that approximately 90 per cent of the total outstanding stock of the White Motor Co. had been deposited under the Studebaker merger proposal. A check-up is being made, he added, and an official announcement will be made later.

Yesterday was the final day for depositing White stock, and interests identified with both companies were of the opinion that sufficient stock had assented to make the plan operative.

Studebaker asked for the deposit of 75 per cent of the outstanding White shares, but reserved the right to declare the plan in effect if not less than two-thirds agreed to the plan.

GOLD MOVEMENT.

New York, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—An exportation of $35,000 in gold to Switzerland was reported by the New York Federal Reserve Bank today. It was the first outward shipment of metal from this country since mid-August.

However, bankers said the movement apparently represented a special transaction, since the Swiss franc was well under the level at which exports would be profitable on an exchange basis. That currency closed today at 19.32 cents against the current "gold point" of about 19.48 cents.

The bank also reported receipt of $60,000 in gold from Holland. There were no changes in foreign earmarked stocks. San Francisco has received $313,000 from China.

WHEAT VALUES GAIN ON CHINA SALE HOPE

Rumor of 75,000,000-Bushel Buy on Long Credit Aids Other Grains.

Chicago, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Wheat advanced sharply at the close today, with unconfirmed rumors afloat that Henry Ford would tonight announce a 75,000,000-bushel purchase of wheat for China. The rumors were authoritatively denied later, but not until after trading had ended.

There was not much volume to wheat transactions and the rise of values came about in considerable degree because of absence of selling pressure. Strength of securities, together with need of rain Southwest, had a contributing bullish influence and so, too, did unfavorable weather for crop movement northwest, as well as increase sales of flour by domestic mills.

Wheat closed firm at the day's top, ¾ to 1 cent above yesterday's finish; corn, a shade to ¼ up; oats, ¼ to ⅝ advanced, and provisions varying from 7 cents decline to a rise of 2 cents.

Rumors Become Factors.

Before being contradicted, rumors of big wheat purchases for China on a long-term credit basis were chiefly influential as a disturbing factor among traders who had been speculative sellers. Meanwhile, unsettlement of British exchange was almost ignored owing to recoveries in part from an extreme setback of 6 points, and because of upturns in wheat quotations at Liverpool.

Another strengthening factor in wheat here was notice taken of a concerted movement in eleven Western States urging consumers each to buy a bushel of wheat in the form of a 49-pound sack of flour.

Abrogation of the Russian trade agreement with Great Britain had almost no effect on the markets, as Russia has been offering little wheat of late. Much greater attention was given to a falling off in Canadian rural marketings, Winnipeg reporting arrivals today of only 637 cars, compared with 3,083 a week ago and 928 at this time last year. Texas advices said another dry norther was sweeping over the Panhandle, and that wheat prospects were poor.

Corn and oats were firmer with wheat and as a result of proposals for emergency export rail rates on corn. Export purchases of 150,000 bushels of corn for France were noted.

Provisions averaged lower with hog values.

COTTON PRICES GAIN ON TRADE'S BUYING

General Market Is Advanced 9 to 15 Points; December Sells at 6,40.

New York, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Cotton advanced moderately today on trade buying and covering which were evidently stimulated by the late advance in the stock market and firmness of grains.

December contracts after selling off from 6.38 to 6.26, rallied to 6.46 in the late trading and closed at 6.40, with the general market closing barely steady at net advances of 9 to 15 points.

The opening was 6 to 8 points higher, but following the close of Liverpool prices sagged back to about yesterday's finals. Prices rose about 16 to 20 points net higher on active positions, but closing quotations were several points off from the best on realizing.

Adjustment of Difference.

Attention during the early trading centered on the adjustment of New York-Liverpool differences to the changes in sterling exchange. The early Liverpool buying here again was attributed to arbitrages between the two markets.

The weekly weather report said that picking and ginning had made rapid progress in Texas, but in Eastern belt sections had been checked by heavy rains in the latter part of the week, also that there was considerable complaint of damage to open cotton in many localities east of the Mississippi River.

Southern selling in small lots appeared to be reaching here in spurts during the day and was reported quite active in the late trading. Exports today, 73,796, making 1,721,250 so far this season. Port receipts, 82,101. United States port stocks, 3,930,644.

TRACTION'S NET CUT $10,996 IN MONTH

Buses and Taxicabs Blamed by Capital Company; Profit Made in 1931.

Competition from other modes of transportation, such as buses and taxicabs, cost the Capital Traction Co. a deficit of $10,996.25 in September, it was revealed yesterday in the monthly operating statement of the company submitted to the Public Utilities Commission.

During the same month last year the traction company realized a net profit of $9,452.49. A decrease in earnings of $20,448.74 was therefore suffered during this September. The total number of passengers during the month was 4,092,450, a decrease of 523,641 from last year.

Operating revenues this month were $239,808.32, compared with $276,418.72 last year; operating expenses were $202,128.40, compared with $217,339.82; taxes amounted to $17,930.01, compared with $20,061.08 last year; operating income was $19,749.91, compared with $39,017.82 last year.

The American Railway Association reports that Class I railroads had 598,622 surplus freight cars in good repair and immediately available for service on September 30. This was a reduction of 56,229 cars compared with September 14, at which time there were 654,851 surplus freight cars.

Business failures in the United States for the week ended October 18 amounted to 440 as against 438 in the preceding week and 511 for the corresponding period last year, according to Bradstreet's weekly.

Loft, Inc., with a branch in this city, had sales of $9,975,007.19 for the first nine months of 1932, an increase of $280,209.76, or 3.15 per cent over the same period last year, it was announced yesterday.

Robert V. Fleming, president of the Riggs National Bank, returned yesterday from the annual convention of the American Bankers Association at Los Angeles. He will present a report on the convention tomorrow afternoon at a meeting of the District of Columbia Bankers Association.

'32 COTTON PRODUCT SALES EXCEED YIELD

New York, Oct. 19 (U.P.).—Sales of cotton products have been substantially ahead of production in 1932, and have amounted to 82 per cent of the 1929 production for the same period, George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton-Textile Institute, told members of the organization today.

In spite of this, however, Mr. Sloan said that "unhappily, in the face of this relatively high demand, there has been little or no profit." He urged consideration of proposals to curtail night work in cotton mills and attention to the problem of "how many yards can be profitably offered for sale and justifiably manufactured."

Mr. Sloan urged the principle of the shorter work week. "To be specific," he said, "if certain elements within our industry continue to show an unwillingness to cooperate and an utter disrespect for trade and public sentiment, it is inevitable that some way will be found to bring about a more uniformly moderate work week and a more general confinement of production to daylight operation. Whether this will come through the establishment of governmental control or regulation is open to conjecture."

Greater cooperation in the cotton industry, leading to "planned production," balanced against accurate estimates of consumption, is necessary under present conditions, Howard Coffin, noted economist, told the institute.

After reciting the benefits that have come to the automobile industry through the orderly cooperation of manufacturers, Coffin urged the speedy amendment of antitrust laws, "to permit effective economic planning within each of our major American industries."

"Somewhere between the extremes of the to us intolerable Russian ideal and our past conception of unrestricted license in commercial competition, an acceptable medium must be found," he said. "Planned production must in the future be balanced against accurately estimated market consuming powers. Selling below the reasonable cost of finished products must become definitely recognized as the most destructive of all practices."

Heavy Decline Reported In Flaxseed Crushings

(Associated Press.)

Flaxseed crushings for the quarter ended September 30 were reported yesterday by the Census Bureau to have totaled 104,663 tons, compared with 213,083 tons for the same quarter last year.

Production of linseed oil amounted to 68,664,614 pounds, compared with 141,204,905 pounds. Stocks of flaxseed at mills September 30 amounted to 74,576 tons, compared with 118,760 a year ago, and stocks of linseed oil reported by crushers were 65,863,475 pounds, compared with 76,150,682.

Anti-Gerrymander Bill Is Proposed

O'Connor Plans Move to Reenact 1911 Reapportionment Provision.

(Associated Press.)

Representative O'Connor (Democrat), New York, announced yesterday he would introduce a bill in December to reenact the provision of the 1911 reapportionment act requiring that congressional districts be composed of "contiguous and compact territory."

O'Connor said he would do this "in view of the surprising decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the Mississippi congressional reapportionment case."

"Surely," he said, "Congress can not permit a situation to exist whereby the un-American practice of gerrymander can be carried on in certain States in violation of the constitutional guarantee of equal representation."

TREES from a diseased forest used in the outer log work of one of Yellowstone National Park's store buildings give the veranda and other parts of the store their grotesque appearance. The large swellings on the logs are the results of a peculiar blight or disease prevalent in the area from which the wood was cut.

The "knotted forest," located near Lake Yellowstone, has hundreds of trees that are gnarled and swollen in places by the blight. Another feature of the store shown today is that hot water used in its heating system is piped from nearby geysers.

When Jem Smith successfully defended his English title in a bout with Frank Slavin in Belgium in 1889 under the old rules of pugilism, his title became perpetual—for his was the last barefisted title bout under the English crown. With the introduction of gloved boxing, there were no more seekers after his honor. The old order of boxing is extinct and illegal, and Smith its last champion.

Although he fought other matches after his bout with Slavin, his championship was not at stake, for already public sentiment had forced the adoption of the Marquis of Queensberry rules of 1886, and barefisted fighting was doomed.

CITY HEADS CONFER TOMORROW ON WAY TO GET RELIEF FUND

Officials Hopeful Congress Will Take Step at Least Before Christmas.

The District Commissioners will confer tomorrow with the special committee on emergency relief regarding the need for immediate financial assistance as well as an early appropriation by Congress, and on Saturday the matter will be discussed by District officials with the Budget Bureau.

The question of the amount of money to be asked has not been determined, and probably will not be settled upon until shortly before Congress reconvenes. Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the board, yesterday emphatically denied published reports that the Commissioners had decided to ask for $1,000,000.

Although the matter has not yet been taken up, District officials are of the opinion that the municipal government is powerless to raise money to supplement the dwindling relief fund until Congress can appropriate the new fund. The only assistance in sight appears to be aid from the Community Chest if its campaign is successful.

Speedy Appropriation.

Principal attention will first be devoted to the most effective means of obtaining a speedy appropriation. Among the questions to be decided are whether the request will be independent of the District budget; that is, a special appropriation, or a deficiency bill.

District officials are hopeful that the request for an appropriation will be in such shape that Congress will be able to act shortly after meeting or at least before the Christmas recess. Action on the District budget, however, is usually delayed until the last few weeks.

No Mention of Amount.

That $1,000,000 is the minimum that the emergency relief organization can operate with during the winter and spring if the need is to be met has already been estimated by charitable agencies, but District officials have persistently declined to name any specific amounts, even in the recent report of the special emergency relief committee of the welfare board.

The fact that Congress will be confronted with the problem of appropriating funds to meet the need for eighteen months would indicate that even more than $1,000,000 will be asked, though perhaps in two appropriations. It has been suggested that a special fund be asked to carry the relief work through the winter and spring and that an additional appropriation be included in the 1934 District act.

Firearm Antique Taken From River at Low Tide

The weapons of bad men of olden days may be cast forth from the waters of Anacostia River in the same manner by which an antique pistol, claimed yesterday by T. Morris Wampler, Washington attorney, was recently recovered.

A number of firearm relics were stolen from Mr. Wampler's home at Fenwick, Md., several weeks ago and last week Park Policeman R. F. Selby reclaimed from the river bottom at low tide one of the weapons said to be more than 200 years old. Police are on the lookout for other antiques which they say may be recovered in the same manner.

Playground Body To Plant 8 Trees

Completion of Chevy Chase Park to Be Observed in Ceremony.

Plans were announced yesterday by the District Playground Department for the planting of eight trees next Wednesday to celebrate the completion of the Chevy Chase Playground at Forty-first and Livingston streets. Each of the trees will be sponsored by neighborhood organizations.

Edwin S. Hege, of the Chevy Chase Citizens Association, will be master of ceremonies. Among the guests invited are Commissioner Luther H. Reichederfer, Dr. Abram Simon, Board of Education; Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant, 3d, Director of Public Buildings and Public Parks; Mrs. Frank B. Noyes, president of the Garden Club of America; former Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty, Dr. George C. Havenner, of the District Bicentennial Commission, and Edward W. Donn, jr., designer of the restored Wakefield.

Organizations which will participate in the event are Chevy Chase Recreation Association, Chevy Chase Citizens Association, Chevy Chase Garden Club of Maryland, Chevy Chase Garden Club of the District, E. V. Brown Home and School Association, Chevy Chase Women's Club, Chevy Chase Masonic Lodge, and Chevy Chase Order of the Eastern Star.

Man Is Arrested In Attack on Girl

Acting on a tip, Montgomery County police yesterday arrested Maurice A. Stewart, colored, 21, of Germantown, Md., on charges of criminally assaulting a 14-year-old white girl at Germantown. He was arrested for county police by Washington police at the Franciscan Monastery, in Brookland, where he was employed in the kitchen.

The man was taken to Montgomery County Jail at Rockville to await trial. He was arrested on a bench warrant issued after the county grand jury had returned an indictment. He was arrested through the efforts of Detective Theodore Vollten, of the Identification Bureau, and Deputy Game Warden Carroll Waters.

The man escaped in a hail of bullets when police went to his home to arrest him the morning after the alleged assault. He is alleged to have crept into the girl's bedroom while the rest of her family was asleep.

Elberfield and Easley were treated at Casualty Hospital, where they were placed under police guard. Their conditions were said to be serious.

According to information obtained by police, the fight started as a result of an argument over the cooking of some potatoes. In the fight, a pocketknife, a paring knife and two pieces of iron pipe were wielded, police said.

New Parole Board Moves Into Office

Holds First Meeting in Quarters Adjacent to Gen. Crosby.

The recently appointed District parole board yesterday opened an office on the fifth floor of the District Building adjacent to the rooms occupied by Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby. A man to be appointed by the Commissioners will occupy the office space throughout the day.

Several meetings have been held by the board, of which Isaac Gans is chairman, but yesterday's session was the first in the new quarters. It is the duty of the board to act on indeterminate sentence cases under a law enacted by the last Congress. Formerly all paroles were granted by Federal board.

The room occupied by the parole board is the same that George J. Adams, jr., deposed executive secretary of the District committee on employment, used until he aroused the displeasure of the Commissioners. Mr. Adams was transferred to the basement when Gen. Crosby said he wanted the space for a conference room. Since then, however, it has been rarely used.

POTOMAC IS CLOSE TO TOP OF SEA WALL

But Overflow in Park Is Not Expected With No Rain Due Today.

The Potomac, swollen by recent rains almost to flood stage, was but a foot below the top of the sea wall in Potomac Park last night. However, park police said they thought the river had reached its peak and that slight recession of the waters was noted late last night.

With the Weather Bureau forecasting a rainless day today, it is thought that the river will not flood the east portion of the park. Reports from Martinsburg, W. Va., and Hagerstown, Md., said the river was several feet above normal.

The downpour lasting three days recorded a total of 2.92 inches of rainfall in the city. This brings the total for the month to 6.92 inches. More rain is in prospect tomorrow and there still is a possibility that the all-time mark for October of 8.69 inches will be broken.

A low-pressure area which will bring more rain is moving in from the West and will strike this area late tomorrow or early Saturday, according to the Weather Bureau.

The end of the rain brought a stop to the series of more than 100 accidents in which 50 persons were injured. Police blamed these on slippery streets and the poor visibility due to mist and fog.

Traffic Agent Accused By Policeman Released

Judge Ralph Given in Police Court yesterday dismissed a charge of failing to give the right of way, preferred against Harry L. Morningstar, an examiner in the Traffic Bureau, by Park Policeman W. E. Riley.

Riley claimed he was making a left hand turn at Rhode Island and Florida avenues Sunday when an automobile operated by Morningstar nearly hit him. He arrested the traffic bureau operator and took him into court, where the airing of the charges Monday left the situation deadlocked. Yesterday, Judge Given decided he couldn't find any blame attached to Morningstar and he dismissed the case.

WJSV'S DEDICATION PROGRAM IS TO GO ON AIR AT 9 TONIGHT

Service Bands, Comedy and Greetings From National Figures Announced.

Station WJSV, the National Capital area outlet of the Columbia Broadcasting System, will take its place on the air at 9 o'clock tonight with a dedication program three and a half hours long. Brief talks, symphonic orchestral arrangements, dance bands, songs, comedy and greetings from prominent individuals will feature the premiere broadcast.

The station will broadcast its first program from 9 to 10 p. m. and will receive its first program from the Columbia network at 10 o'clock—a half-hour presentation of American theme music under the direction of Andre Kostelanetz greeting the new WJSV.

Included in this portion of the program will be the messages of greeting from President Hoover, Govs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, John Garland Pollard and Albert C. Ritchie.

Mayor Will Speak.

The speakers to be heard from 9 to 10 p. m. are Mayor E. C. Ticer, of Alexandria; Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, District Commissioner; Col. Thad H. Brown, member of the Federal Radio Commission, representing the zone in which WJSV is located, and Harry C. Butcher, director of the Washington office of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Music during this hour will be furnished by the United States Marine Band, under the direction of Capt. Taylor Branson; the United States Navy Band, directed by Lieut. Charles Benter; the United States Army Band, directed by Capt. William J. Stannard, and Leon Brusiloff's Orchestra.

Helen Corbin Heinl, Washington concert pianist, accompanied by the Marine Band, will play the brilliant "Valse Celebre," by Moszkowski. The Marine Band will play the overture to "Oberon."

Old English Clarinet.

The Army Band will feature the overture to "The Four Ages of Man," by Lachner. This music was featured at the Yorktown Sesquicentennial celebration and contains the original version of "Yankee Doodle," very seldom heard nowadays. A clarinet, made in 1792, of the type used in the old English bands, will be played by the regular Army Band clarinetist during this number.

"The Virginia Rhapsody" will be played by the U. S. Navy Band, while Brusiloff's Orchestra will present a special arrangement of "The Return to Sorrento."

The half-hour program emanating from New York, under the direction of Andre Kostelanetz, will follow, and a "Radio Round-up" will conclude the program. This "round-up" will be contributed to by the talent of WMAL, WRC and WOL, lasting for 2½ hours.

The new WJSV, operating on 1,460 kilocycles (205.4 meters), will take its place on a full-time basis tomorrow morning at 7 o'clock.

Keech to Request Phone Valuation

Plans to Renew His Motion Refused at Hearing Last July.

People's Counsel Richard B. Keech yesterday said he intended to renew his request that the Public Utilities Commission undertake at once a valuation of the properties of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. He made such a motion at the telephone rate hearings in July, but the commission refused to accept the suggestion.

Under present plans of the commission, the telephone company's valuation will be formally undertaken the first of next year upon conclusion of the valuation of the properties of the Washington and the Georgetown Gas Light companies. With the valuation work on the street railways scheduled to be completed by the end of this month, Mr. Keech suggested that the commission will not have time and facilities to inaugurate the telephone case.

The telephone rate case appears to be tied up in litigation for some time, possibly a year or more, Mr. Keech said, and the benefits of the 10 per cent rate reduction are distant, to say the least. Whether the rate case is lost or won, he said, no time should be lost by the commission in determining a true value of the company so that future rates may be more expeditiously fixed.

Cabs Figure in Fourth Of Crashes, Data Show

Although comprising only about 4 per cent of the automobiles in operation here, taxicabs are involved in about one fourth of the accidents, it was disclosed yesterday by the statistical bureau of the police department.

During the last few days of rain the percentage of collisions involving cabs was slightly higher, but this was explained by department officials as being due to increase of cab operations during rainy weather. Hackers and livery cabs total 6,781 and the total number of all vehicles registered is 171,733.

Pilfered Auto Safe; Coupal Out Cab Fare

It may or may not have been an early Halloween prank, with Maj. James F. Coupal, former personal physician to former President Coolidge as the victim.

Maj. Coupal emerged from making a professional call near Twenty-second and K streets northwest early last night. He was in a hurry to make other urgent calls. Arriving at the spot where he had parked his machine, it was gone.

The former President's medical aid jumped into a taxicab with the intention of notifying police after making his next call. Several blocks away, Maj. Coupal espied his machine undamaged and parked. Police are investigating.

U. S. RESTS IN TRIAL OF 6 CHARGED WITH SLAYING POLICEMAN

Jury Hears Attack Described and Conspiracy Outlined; Defense Opens Today.

Graphic descriptions of the manner in which a group of colored men first knocked down Park Policeman Milo J. Kennedy, and then beat him to death in Logan circle last August, yesterday were given the District Supreme Court jurors sitting in the trial of six colored men charged with the slaying.

Guided by Assistant United States Attorney William H. Collins, a host of prosecution witnesses related stories of how Kennedy was ensnared into coming into Logan circle, and then was set upon by a score of men as the result of a well-laid conspiracy to murder him.

Statements Read to Jury.

The statements of the six accused, taken by officers of the Police Department shortly after their arrest, were read to the jury. The statements directly involved three of the defendants, Irving Murray, Ralph Holmes, and Joseph Jackson. Each of the other three on trial said they were at the scene of the slaying, but took no active part in the scheme. They were Louis R. Murray, Harry M. Duvall and Leroy Robinson.

Immediately after the presentation of the statements, Mr. Collins announced that he closed the Government's case, with the reservation that he could present additional evidence today if he discovered any loopholes in the prosecution's case as it has been unfolded.

Defense Starts Today.

This morning, John H. Wilson, chief defense attorney, will ask Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat, presiding, to direct a verdict freeing all of the defendants. This is a technical move, and it is expected to be denied. After that, Wilson will begin the presentation of the defense relied upon by the six to acquit them of the slaying charge.

Mother Seriously Ill, Missing Man Is Hunted

Police were urged last night to search for Leonard Dodson, of Culpeper, Va., who disappeared on October 11, the day he arrived in Washington for treatment for a serious malady which physicians in his home town were unable to diagnose.

Mrs. Minnie Johnson, of 129 Bates street northwest, who asked aid of police, said Dodson came to her home and consulted with her about seeing a local physician, but he disappeared before having seen a doctor. She said Dodson was a stranger in Washington, and had no money when he disappeared. She said his mother, Mrs. Katie Dodson, 50, of Culpeper, is in a very serious condition.

Baby's Wails Ring True

Boy's Cries Bring Nurse, Mother and Later the Rescue Squad, Which Saves Him From Rung of Ladder He Explored.

His childish curiosity probably aroused by the "funny thing," William H. Towell, 2 years old, took advantage of the momentary absence of his nurse to do some exploring of a ladder in the third floor hall, leading to the attic of his home at 2108 Bancroft place northwest, yesterday afternoon. But his enthusiastic exploration was of short duration.

A wail of fright and agony brought his nurse hurrying to his rescue, and rescue it was, for she found his neck pinioned between the lower rung of the ladder and the wall. Unable to free him, the nurse called his mother, Mrs. John E. Towell, who was shopping in a nearby store. The mother called the Rescue Squad.

Until the squad arrived little William wailed loud and long, but when he saw the firemen he ceased his outcries and watched them while they worked ten minutes cutting the rung with a steel hack saw. He apparently was uninjured, but a sore neck probably will remind him of his adventure for a day or two.

Mayflower Fete Observes 151st Anniversary of Yorktown.

In commemoration of the Yorktown campaign 151 years ago, members of the Sons of the American Revolution, garbed in colonial dress, staged a colorful pageant and ball at the Mayflower Hotel last night.

A business meeting preceded the pageant and ball, at which reports from various committees were heard and twelve new members were installed in the organization.

S. S. Williamson, president of the organization, presided over the gathering which was officially opened by John Paul Earnest. Capt. Merlyn G. Cook, U. S. N., delivered a short description of the fight of the Ranger, the first American warship to carry the Stars and Stripes against the British ship Drake. Admiral Charles F. Hughes gave a brief account of the use of sea power during the Revolution.

One of the features of the evening's program was the pageant of flags, which brought the standards of the States, one by one, before the president of the society, the barers then forming in open column and dropping the flags as the "Betsy Ross flag" of thirteen stars was paraded to the front. This was followed by the roll, which lasted until midnight.

As an introductory feature in the celebration, Dr. J. Newton Baker delivered a talk over Station WMAL at 6:45 p. m. He based his talk on the preamble of the Constitution and emphasized the provisions of common defense.
